MR. THOMAS MABLEY

Has just returned from the New York and Eastern markets, where he has purchased an enormous Spring Stock of

MEN'S, YOUTHS', BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S

Clothing and Gentlemen's Furnishings

These Goods are daily arriving in vast quantities, and we are now prepared to clothe you as may become your station and at prices, the reasonableness of which must astonish you.

Circumstances have caused a great cut to be made in the prices of all the large Eastern Clothing Manufacturers, and our extraordinary facilities for handling great quantities of goods, "our houses nine in number," being well known to them, we were enabled to purchase such goods at our own figures. These advantages we propose to share with you.

We shall sell you Men's Spring Suits which under the most favorable circumstances cannot be sold by other dealers at less than $13 50, for $10 and $10 50.

Suits for which $15 would be an extreme low figure, we will sell you at $11 50 and $12.

Still other Suits, which you would not hesitate to take were we to ask for them $17 50, we propose to furnish to you at $13 and $13 50.

These same Low Prices will continue on throughout our entire stock, Men's, Youths', Boys' and Children's alike, while the assortment we shall offer will be no less surprising.

THOS. MABLEY,

Northwest Corner of Fifth and Pine.

WASHINGTON.

Sam'l Blatchford Nominated as Justice of the Supreme Court.

Condition of Senator Hill and Congressmen Allen and Black—Congressional Proceedings—Political News.

Edmunds Will Accept.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—The impression now prevails here quite generally that Senator Edmunds will consent to accept the appointment to the Supreme Bench, and friends of the Senator incline to this view. It seems that the Judges of the Supreme Court have all been urging Edmunds to accept, and some of them have offered to do the work of his circuit this coming summer if he will consent to accept.

Guiteau, Mason, Jones.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—A petition to the President to pardon Mason will be signed by some of the members of the court-martial. The President will probably do nothing until after Guiteau's execution. Mason takes it coolly. He says his greatest sorrow is leaving his wife and child. Guiteau is pleased with the sentence and says the law was made to apply to just such rascals and should be carried out. Guiteau is allowed no visitors now. He gives most of his time to proofs of his book and religious reading and thought. Bill Jones, the other avenger, is still under bail and probably will not be tried before fall.

THE CHINESE BILL.

It is doubtful if the Chinese bill gets up in the House to-morrow, as several privileged reports and appropriation bills have precedence.

SENATOR HILL.

Senator Hill is improving, and was able to go down stairs to dinner yesterday.

"WHITE."

A bill was introduced in the House, by Mr. Robinson, of New York, to-day, to exclude the words "white" and "colored" from the District of Columbia school laws.

THE INDIAN LANDS.

A proposed bill to allot lands in severalty to the Indians meets the approval of the Indian Commission. The committee will probably report it to the Senate to day. The commissioners in a recent report recommend this plan.

MONEY ORDER BUILDING.

Work was begun to-day on the new building for the money order department of the Post-office. This department of the system has grown so rapidly that more space is demanded.

EUROPEAN EXODUS.

The summer exodus to Europe promises to exceed anything ever known. Already nearly all the berths of May sailing are taken.

FROM NO LACK OF LABOR.

Reports from South Carolina say no lack of labor is caused by last winter's exodus.

WITHDRAWN.

It is said General Rosecrans has withdrawn from the contest ot the chairmanship of the Democratic Congressional Committee, and Flower, the New York banker and Member of Congress, will get it.

Sending Out Rations.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The Secretary of War has instructed Maj. Sutter, of St. Louis, to furnish the Government steamboats available for the transportation of supplies to the sufferers by the overflow. It is the intention not only that the Government supplies should be carried on these boats, but any which may be furnished from any other sources, and that they shall assist in the distribution of supplies already issued to the State commissioners. The present information indicates the stores already issued will last, as follows: At Memphis, for Mississippi, until the 20th inst.; at Memphis, for Tennessee, until the 21st; at Memphis, for Arkansas, probably the same New Madrid, for Missouri, until the 31st; at Gayosa, probably the same. From Charleston, Mo., the report is immediate necessity for sendmore. There are no definreports from Mound City except that the destitute are supposed to number 10,000. The Secretary of War telegraphed Governor Mc'ul om, Springfield, Illinois, as follows: "Townsend, from the Shawneetown district, has information of great suffering around Shawneetown from the floods. If you desire relief sent there please name the commissioner and ascertain and inform me of the number of distress and will render such assistance as is possible." He also telegraphed Blackburn, Frankfort, Ky., as follows: Re[illegible] United States Army, telecolumbus, Ky.: "About 500 people need assistence to be distributed from Columbus." If you desire this to be done and telegraph the name of commissioner to make distribution at that point I will order 10,000 rations." The secretary also sent the following telegram to Commissioners Gilles and Schark, New Orleans: "The present appropriation is nearly exhausted, so the department cannot place 5,000 rations at your disposal. An additional appropriation is probable."

Help for the Flood Sufferers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The Government steamers distributing supplies along the Mississippi state the Commissioners requested to report if the supplies on hand for Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas will last till the 20th inst. Five hundred thousand rations are requested from New Orleans. Two thousand six hundred were sent to Mound City, Ill.; 10,000 to Kentucky, where 500 people are suffering. A further appropriation is expected from Congress.

Nominations.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The President has made the following nominations:

Samuel Blatchford, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

John Russell Young, New York, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to China.

NOT LYNCHED.

But the Sheriff was Killed by the Masked Men.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, OREGON, March 13.—Last night a dozen masked men rode into Linkville, where H. C. Laws, charged with murder, was in custody of Deputy Sheriff J. T. Lewis and Justice Wright, awaiting examination. The officers and prisoner were at the hotel. The lynchers entered, but were ordered to halt. They refused, and Lewis fired, wounding one of the party. The fire was returned, killing Sheriff Lewis and wounding Justice Wright. The prisoner was not lynched.

ALL QUIET.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, NEB., March 13.—Work was resumed at the dump this morning, the full force of military being stationed as on Saturday. Part of the laborers employed on the sewer trenches struck this morning, but the larger part refused to strike and are still at work. About fifty men resumed work this morning at the smelting works and they are still straggling in a few at a time and asking to return to work.

The post-mortem examination of George P. Armstrong, killed by the militia last evening, is now going on, and the Coroner's inquest will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The injuries of the two others bayonetted are not serious. Armstrong was an old citizen of about 55, and not a striker. There is nothing at this writing to indicate any collision to-day. The militia are drilling, guards are walking their beats, and the lower part of the city is transformed into a military camp.

In the murder trial of Chas. Kosters for killing Oscar Hammer, of Chicago, the jury disagreed, and were discharged about 10 o'clock to-day, having been out since early Saturday evening. They stood nine for acquittal and three for conviction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WICHITA, KAS., March 13.—The County Commissioner of Harvey county has just canvassed the vote of the county on the recent proposition to aid the St. Louis, Fort Scott and Wichita Road. On account of alleged fraudulent votes cast by employes of the Santa Fe Road, the votes of Sedgewick City, Halstead and Walton were thrown out. They declare the bonds carried by 750 majority. The Santa Fe Company say they will take the matter into the courts and prevent the issuing of the bonds by mandamus.

The Demon Jealousy.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., March 13.—On Saturday Isaac Kendrick shot his wife twice and killed her at their house, two miles east of Grant Station, northeast of this city. "GOD HAS ABANDONED ME!"

A Widow's Cry Ere She Takes Her Own Life.

CLEVELAND, O., March 13.—Mrs. F. A. Reynolds, a widow 35 years old, employed in the Cleveland Hospital for the Insane, drowned herself early this morning in a small creek running through the asylum grounds. About two years ago she removed from Vermont to Oberlin, where she attended college. Morbid sensitiveness appears to have been the cause. Mrs. Reynolds left a package addressed to be expressed to Miss Mmma A. Hyde, Grand Isle, Vt., and the following note dated Saturday, to be mailed: "My Dear Emma—I send you a few books I have here and a little money. I know that to you life must often seem dreary and death better. To me it has become insupportable longer. I know that suicide is murder, but God has abandoned me and it matters little now what I do. I have tried to pray since I have been here, but could not. Do not mourn for me, dear, but stand in your own lot and be strong. Have all the charity you can for me.

Affectionately,
F. A. REYNOLDS."

The water where the body was found was only three feet deep. She attended church yesterday and taught a class in the Sunday school. During the three months she has been at the asylum she often appeared melancholy, and spoke gloomily of her past life as if it had been one of sorrow and struggle against adversity.

A Minor's Breach of Promise.

Judge Boyle sustained to-day the demurrer to the petition in the attachment suit connected with the breach of promise and seduction case of Ohme against Koch et al. The defendant is a minor, son of the deceased brewer. The court says: "Neither the fact of seduction nor the breach of promise can sustain the present action, which seeks to attach, the former because not a ground of action in favor of the plaintiff, the latter because not a ground of action against the minor defendant. An action for deceit could not be maintained against a minor where the fraud consists of a breach of promise. Deceit, moreover, is not maintainable for a mere promise for the future, even though the promise be false or fraudulent. The demurrer can certainly be set up by the guardian of the minor."

The books were thrown open this morning for the inspection of property-owners. There was not a very large gathering during the early hours, but five weeks are at the disposal of citizens to peruse the returns. As Judge Lindley was sick, the order appointing the Board of Appeals was sent out to his house for signature.

The light draught steamer Anita, in the Government service, departed this evening for Memphis. She will there be taken in charge by an army officer, probably Major Benyard. All people who are at present driven from their homes by the high water will be removed to a place of safety. Several other boats are being overhauled and provisioned, and will be sent on the same mission some day this week.

THE TALES OF TRAVELERS.

Passengers on the Baton Rouge Describe the Scenes in the Flooded Districts.

The River Forty Miles Wide—Higher Water Expected.

The passengers by the steamboat City of Baton Rouge, which arrived this morning from New Orleans, bring up a melancholy account of the high river and the flooded country. They all have the same old story to tell, water everywhere, and no sign of any abatement of the flood.

The officers and passengers all state that the river all along the route is in a terrible condition, that it is on an average forty miles wide all the way from Cairo down, and that the scene is one of utter desolation. The boat skimmed by so lively that the travelers had not much chance to get any details, but the general impression was very bad.

Captain H. E. Bixby said that it was the greatest flood he had ever seen. He had not brought up any refugees on this trip, and he imagined that all the people along the river front that had not been taken away by this time were out of reach of all succor.

Richard Carroll, one of the mates of the steamer, said that the levees had all broken, on both sides, the whole length of the line from Cairo down, with the exception of about forty miles above and below Vicksburg. All the rest was a sea just as far as could be seen on both sides.

"How long will the places about Vicksburg last?" asked the reporter.

"Not very long. The water is taking a turn and is coming down even from the rear. It is rushing down the Arkansas and Red rivers, and when that rise comes along, as it must do in a day or two, Vicksburg and that neighborhood will be as bad as any place else. In fact it may be so by this time."

"How far has the water run into the bottoms?"

"Oh, when we passed, as far as we could see, perhaps forty, fifty or sixty miles. You see, the Mississippi from is forty miles wide—twenty miles on either side. Well, all of that is under water the whole length. All the cattle, horses, etc., which were caught in there—and there must have been a great number—will either starve or drown."

"Did you see much distress along the route?"

"A great deal of it as we sped along. People were everywhere upon the high levees, most of them with their stores piled around them. They are all right yet, however, and they did not signal to us. Such scenes can be seen all along the route."

"Where is the worst point as far as you noticed?"

"By far the worst place is the region about Memphis, from 200 miles below to 100 miles above that point. All is water there, and everything is submerged."

POLICE COMMISSIONER SAMUEL CUPPLES said that he had made the round trip with his family without leaving the boat. He could not give many details, but the scenes of desolation were terrible. All along nothing was to be seen but water. The destitution must be terrible, and aid must surely be needed. All on board agreed in saying that the flood was not at its highest, and that the worst might be yet looked for. The people down in the flooded districts can, in most instances, put in a crop as late as May, but in many cases they will not have this chance. To do this, the water should be off the land for more than two weeks to enable them to dry properly, and then again, the sand deposits in many cases ruin the soil for agriculture. On the whole, the Baton Rouge passengers tell a very melancholy story.

A BULLET FOR BARNABEE.

The Suicide of a Teamster Last Night.

He is Supposed to Have Been Temporarily Insane.

Patrolmen Palmer and Shipp were making their early morning rounds of the wharves this morning, when they discovered a man's body on the Almond street ferry float. The man was stretched at full length on his back, with the right arm outstretched and the hand grasping a Robin Hood revolver, 32 caliber, one chamber of which was empty. From a bullet hole in the right temple the blood oozed slowly down the incline towards the wharf-rail. His feet were within a foot of the water's edge. The Coroner's office was telegraphed and the body removed to the Morgue for identification. In the pockets was found a letter from James O'Brien, Millwood, Lincoln county, Mo., speaking of a loan of $250 and enclosing receipt for the interest on the same. The letter spoke of the addressed's mother, who she said was now "quiet and harmless," and recommended to be given in charge of the sisters of charity. The body was identified as that of Patrick Barnabee, a teamster who was employed by the Transfer Company. He boarded at the Benton House, corner of Third and Elm streets. Deputy Coroner Praedicow searched the room and found $50 in bills wrapped up in an old piece of paper in the pockets of an old pair of pantaloons. Ten dollars in silver was found in the corner of an old closet, wrapped in some old paper, and dollars was found in the pockets of another old garment and five dollars and nine cents in the pocket of the pantaloons worn by the deceased. About eight o'clock last night, a private watchman patroling a levee beat saw the deceased walking down the incline plane of the levee toward the water. He did not act suspiciously, and, supposing he had business on the wharf, no further attention was paid to him. A few minutes later he heard a pistol shot but failed to trace it, and seeing no one paid no further heed to this. The ferries had stopped crossing and the river front was deserted. This morning the body was found, as stated above. The letters discovered on the deceased's body indicated that his mother was insane, while the disposition of his own money, the furniture in his room, and his conduct towards the other boarders at the Benton House indicated that he was subject to temporary fits of insanity. The man went down the river intending to end his existence by plunging into the river or take an insane double precaution to put a period to his existence by both shooting himself and throwing himself into the water afterwards. The shot must have caused almost instantaneous death. The body will be taken in charge by John P. Mullally, the undertaker, who telegraphed the friends of the deceased, living at Millwood, of his death.

A GOVERNMENT CLAIM.

Decision in Case Against the Late Collector Ford's Estate.

Judge Treat this morning, in the Circuit Court, rendered judgment for $2,127 36, with interest at six per cent per annum, against C. H. Krum, administrator of Chas. W. Ford, at one time Collector of Internal Revenue. This was an action upon the official bond of the collector to recover three sums of money received by him and alleged to be due the Government. There were decrees of forfeiture of distilled spirits during Collector Ford's tenure. The court gave orders for distribution of portion of the proceeds to the informers. The Collector paid those shares and the sums so paid were two of those sued for. It seemed that the sum fixed upon for compromise was based on penalties and taxes due and the informers were not, in the opinion of the Commissioner, entitled to receive in respect of the latter. Judge Treat holds that there can be no recovery by the United States for the money paid to the informers. There was no defense to the third sum and judgment was rendered on that.

John J. Daly's Assignment.

A deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors was executed to-day by John J. Daly & Co., wholesale printers and stationers, North Third street. The deed is executed to Joseph P. Whyte. The fixtures, stock, book accounts, etc., representing the assets, are sworn to at $8,000. The estate is subject to a mortgage for $12,000.

But little surprise was expressed in business circles at the failure of John J. Daly. The mortgage was executed on the machinery for the security of Williamson, Stewart & Co., the paper house. Mr. Daly's credit was never very firmly established. He was a surety on the bond of ex Sheriff Finn, and he has been heavily pressed of late by creditors. The liabilities have not yet been stated, but they are not large.

ON THE BICYCLE.

Fifth Day of Miss Louise Armaindo's Great Feat.

Miss Louise Armaindo, the bicyclienne, closed her fourth day's ride at Armory Hall last night, making 100 miles, and running the aggregate up to 416 miles in 47 hours and 55 minutes. This morning she appeared on the track in a smiling and apparently cheerful condition, but she is stiffened and weak, and only holds to her purpose by pure force of will and power of endurance. It is evident that if Miss Armaindo completes her task it will be a wonderful exemplification of nerve and physical strength. She said she was feeling very well, but her looks and actions told a different story. With a painful and wearied air she answered the call of time at 10:02 o'clock and resumed her journey. She stopped at 10:26 for one minute; at 10:37 o'clock for four minutes; at 11:03 o'clock for two minutes, and at 11:18 o'clock for six minutes. Her womanly nature is beginning to manifest itself in irritability and frequent requests for changes in the running condition of her bicycle. The attendance today was good and continuous. By request, bulletins are being posted at Mussey's and the Turf Exchange.

Mr. Matthews, the scorer, furnishes the following official result of Miss Armaindo's four days' work:

First Day—Time, 11 hours, 23 minutes; distance, 110 miles, 610 feet; actual riding time, 6 hours, 50 minutes.

Second Day—Time, 11 hours, 21 minutes; distance, 104 miles, 1,525 feet; actual riding time, 8 hours, 56 minutes.

Third Day—Time, 11 hours, 25 minutes; distance, 316 miles; actual riding time, 8 hours, 21 minutes.

Fourth Day—Time, 11 hours, 55 minutes; distance, 100 miles; actual riding time, 8 hours, 48 minutes.

Time for four days, actual riding, 34 hours 57 minutes; distance, 416 miles.

To day's score is as follow:

Time.	Miles.
10:02	416
10:21:45	424
10:56:20	432
11:23	436
12:00	435
12:49	440
1:24	445
1:45	450

At the last mentioned time Miss Armaindo stopped for dinner, having made only thirty-four miles to-day.

CA... ...RIES.

How Gir... ...isses, Caramels ... Drops.

A Talk with ...ry Girl—What the Girl-Wo... Earn—Evils of the ...cupation.

People who eat bon-bons and candies of all sorts know but little about the way in which they are manufactured. The articles suggest sweetness, pleasure and ease, and any mention of labor in connection with them seems out of place. It is just the thing that would not be supposed to be the subject of hard work at the hands of girls and children who should be at school. Yet it is a fact that the gum-drops which the West End belle masticates with such pleasure and the caramels with which her young man often lines his pockets on the occasion of his evening visits represent hard work and long hours and an abundance of physical suffering.

It is not meant that the candy factories, of which there are four or five large ones in this city, are Bastiles or places of torture. On the contrary, they are, with some exceptions, as light and airy as could be expected. But hard work done by small girls is the rule among them, and the little toilers seem to find nothing sweet in the business.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter visited the principal factories to day for the purpose of getting an idea of just how the candy is manufactured. The first place walked through was the Walther factory, at the northeast corner of Third and Myrtle streets. The place was found to be clean, healthy-looking and well ventilated. There are about thirty girls, mostly small ones, employed there, but the rooms are large, are not crowded, and the surroundings are as pleasing as could possibly be in a workshop.

YET THE WORK IS HARD,

the hours are long, and the same fact is present that little people who ought to be at school are confined for hours at work which must permanently injure their health.

In some of the other places the surroundings are not so salubrious. The furnaces, fires and pots of boiling candy render the rooms too warm for healthful occupation, even on cold days. The men mostly work in their undershirts, with sleeves rolled up to the elbows. The sudden changes from this kind of atmosphere to colder places is dangerous and the workers feel the effects of it. In some shops the workers are not more cleanly than they might be. It is not a very appetizing sight to see an athletic young man with bare arms, that evidently require a thorough scrubbing, dragging away at a mass of candy about the consistency of putty, which folds and laps itself around him every move he makes. This is, however, the exception, and is not allowed in the well managed factories, where the strictest attention to details is required. In most of the establishments the working of the material is done by young men and boys. The folding, wrapping and papering is done, as a usual thing, by small girls. A majority of the latter are under the years of age. They sit in rows around benches, where the candy is heaped up in mounds. The papers have been previously prepared, and the kisses, caramels, etc., are wrapped up in the quickest manner by the little tots, who have not time to raise their heads. All work is paid for by the piece, so that any time lost, besides giving rise to a reprimand from the foreman, is a cause for the diminution of the salary received at the end of the week.

The candy factories of the city employ in all about 500 girls and children. They work ten hours a day in most instances, an hour being allowed for lunch at noon. In conversation with a foreman at one of the places visited it was ascertained that were very small, but not less than what is made by such workers in similar employments.

"What can the little girls make?" was asked.

"About $2 or $2 50 per week."

"What is the biggest wages paid in your establishment to girls or children."

"Oh, $6 or perhaps $7."

"How many of them make that?"

"No, indeed. Five dollars is considered good wages, now that they are working full time, from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. During the winter and up to the first of the month we were running only three-quarter days."

Some of the girls, like those employed in other menial labor, are what are known as "hard cases," but the great majority of them are good and lady-like and very attentive to their business.

At one of the factories a tall, handsome brunette about seventeen years of age, with her sleeves rolled up to her elbows, was busily engaged in sorting a heap containing about two bushels of gum-drops.

"This is a POST-DISPATCH reporter," said the proprietor, introducing the visitor.

"You seem to like your work," said the reporter.

"Like it," echoed she as she shoveled up the drops. "I have no choice about that. I have to like it or starve. I cannot get anything else to do."

"Have you tried?"

"Yes. I have been at work since I was nine years of age. I have done lots of things. Before my father died I was all right, but since I've known nothing but work. I first tried stemming in a tobacco factory. I could not stand that, so I quit. Then I stayed at home awhile, but my mother got sick and has been so ever since. My little brothers and sisters began to grow up and something had to be done. I went to work as a nurse girl in Mrs. ——'s family on Olive street. The place was hard and the wages so small that I gave it up and have been at work in factories about ever since. A year ago I thought

I WOULD LIKE TO BE A SALESWOMAN, and got work in one of the big stores."

"How did you get along?"

"Very poorly. They paid me $2 a week. I had to work from seven to seven every day, and on Saturdays until 11 o'clock at night. Of course I must wear good clothes all the time, and these cost me money. At the end of the month, when I asked for more wages, the floorwalker said that I was too backward, and that my sales did not sum up enough every week. I would have to work harder before I could expect a raise. The fact was, I had been doing my best. I got tired of the work. It was very hard, the hours being long, and there were so many people to please. Customers were always growling and we were never asked to state our side of the question at all. If some fussy old lady or young miss complained about us, no matter for what reason, we got the scolding, publicly and without any looking into the matter. I got tired of the life. I made up my mind to come back to the factory."

"You like this work better?"

"Oh, yes. Here I can sit down, have my own work to attend to and nobody to please but the foreman. Cranky people are not coming in in crowds and causing me all kinds of trouble just because something else has annoyed them. I don't have to work on Saturday nights. I get some time to read and rest, and I can make $5 a week without working myself to death."

"So you are satisfied?"

"I have to be. I have two little brothers and a sister to look after. My mother suffers terribly with rheumatism all the time. She can do very little. When she is able she sews vests at home. My oldest sister is only eleven years of age. I try to let her go to school. Perhaps she will have a better chance than I after awhile. I do the best I can, but I can't wear fine clothes, and I have not much jewelry. You see, the five of us have to live on about paying rent and everything else. Sometimes, when mother is sick, she does not earn anything at all."

SEVEN DOLLARS A WEEK,

"There is not much pleasure in life like that?"

"Oh, it's hard enough," laughed the girl, "but what can a person do? The worst of all is that everybody seems to be down on us. Lots of the neighbors down our way won't let their daughters go with me. Why? Because, they say, I'm a factory girl. I can't help that. God knows, I would be better if I could help it. Then, all kinds of people have no respect for a girl who has to work like this for a living. I was going up Fourth street on an errand a couple of nights ago. Two young fellows walked along and one of them turned to take my arm and spoke to me. I stopped and turned around. The other shouted out, 'Come on, Jim. Let her alone. She is one of the things who work down at the candy factory.' 'Oh, is she?' said the other, and they went on laughing. People are always talking about it being honorable and right to work for your living, but they don't mean it. Nobody seems to have any respect for girls that do it, though. It seems to me the worst thing they can get to say is, 'She works in the factory.'"

"Is it not hard to get along on $5 or $6 a week?"

"Yes, indeed. We don't burn much coal, except on very cold days, at home. We have one room, and the cook-stove heats the whole house, you see. We don't often have turkey dinners at our house, but we have never begged from anybody, and everything we get honestly, and that is more than some persons can say, anyhow."

This is the story of a majority of the factory and working girls. They have not the style and polish to obtain other kinds of employment, and they must do something to live. In most of the candy factories they have time, comparatively speaking. In some establishments, however, aniline is used for coloring purposes, and the poisonous dye is a fruitful source of skin diseases. Then, again, where terra alba or white earth is used for adulteration, the dust which is inhaled is very injurious.

Some of the candy factories support considerable numbers of people in this way.

BARRELS OF KISSES, CARAMELS, DROPS,

etc., are sent to the residences of families to be wrapped in the fancy paper coverings. The men, women and children all lend a hand in this employment. The candy and papers are kept in the sleeping-apartments, so that it will be seen that the possibilities are numerous.

Speaking on this subject, Mr. Walther said: "No, I don't send out any more candy to be wrapped. I quit that several years ago."

"For what reason?"

"I'll tell you. There was a woman down here on Second street. She had several children, and used to do considerable wrapping for me. This was during the time of the last small-pox pest epidemic, not the present one."

"Well?"

"One time she seemed to be very slow about sending home the candies. We usually had some sent in every day. I wondered what was the matter, and went down to see. I asked her why she had not been sending up the kisses, and she said, 'Because my children have been sick and I could not work at them.' I noticed two girls lying in a bed in a corner of the room. As I walked over to look at them, the mother said: 'Please wait a few days, Mr. Walther. We will be ready to go to work again then.' I looked at the children and saw that they had eruptions all over their faces. 'Is this small pox?' said I. 'Yes,' said the mother. 'My God,' I said, 'why did not you let me know about this? Here you keep my stock in this same room, and you have me come here, too, although I am not afraid for myself. Why did you not let me know?' The woman had no answer and of course the fact was she wanted to hide the state of affairs so as not to lose her job and the money she was earning. I made her a present of the whole stock of candies and papers which she had, and left the house in a hurry, you may be sure. Since then I have not allowed any more candy to be wrapped outside of the factory. That was several years ago."

Inquiries at some of the other factories, especially the smaller ones, show that the practice of sending out goods to be wrapped was still pursued to a considerable degree. It will be seen what harm this method of working might cause. Even in the healthiest times the dwellings of the poorer classes are not the most savory places to prepare sweetmeats. In seasons of contagious epidemics the consequences might easily be extremely disastrous.

AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

The production of "'49" at the Grand Opera-house last night was witnessed by a large and enthusiastic audience, who evinced thorough interest and approval of the play. The local commendation of "'49" is due largely to the fact that local incidents are cunningly woven into the plot and rendered attractive by references to familiar places, but besides there are situations and dramatic characters that make the play an eminent success in every particular. The story can almost be guessed by the title. An Eastern heiress survives the Mountain Meadow massacre, and in this city a plot is developed to obtain possession of her. Two youngmen are employed to undertake the task, but one of them, devoted to his own interests, becomes the villain of the play and marries a young woman whom he believes to be the heiress. An old forty-niner is engaged to assist in finding the real heiress, and his adventures, heroism and personal encounters form the heroic side of the story. Carrots, the girl about whom so many characters are revolving, is a jovial, good natured, rollicking child of the mountains, whose songs captivate and whose laughter entrances the rough Westerners. In the very nature of things, Carrots turns out to be the heiress, old "'49er" suddenly strikes a rich claim, the young hero comes to the front as the promised husband of Carrots, and the play ends in a parlor of the Lindell Hotel, where all are made happy. In the title role Mr. McKee Rankin has splendid opportunities to display his peculiar abilities, and he becomes at once the center of attraction. His acting is full of interest throughout. Mrs. Rankin possesses a magnificent character in Carrots, which was undoubtedly prepared especially for her use. She holds the interest and success of the drama in her hands and sets a final seal of approval upon the work. Oddly enough, the producers of sensational or border dramas, after the fashion of great tragedians, employ the worst actors available, but in this respect the McKee Rankin Company is an honorable exception, the support being first class. The scenic effects are likewise worthy of mention. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees are announced.

WE would like to record the resignation of a conscience-stricken Municipal Barnacle.

THE day of the Mongolian is ended in this fair land, and the laundry business will now readjust itself on a Caucasian basis.

MR. EDWIN HARRISON has retired temporarily from St. Louis journalism. It is understood that he has about $15,000 worth of experience on hand.

SKOBELEFF has apologized to the Czar for his warlike speeches. The substance of this apology is that if he has said anything that he is sorry for he is glad that he said it.

A TERRIBLE earthquake is reported in Costa Rica, Central America. Four towns were destroyed and the loss of life is said to be very great. The details are lacking.

GUITEAU has been offered $100 for the suit of clothes that he wore when he shot the President, but, with the shrewdness that has always distinguished him, he is holding out for $150.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR to-day nominated Judge BLATCHFORD, of New York, to the vacant Associate Justiceship and named J. RUSSELL YOUNG as Minister to China. Judge EDMUNDS does not even get as much as a piece of cold huckleberry pie.

THEY are putting down Nicholson pavement on Sixth street, near Walnut, to-day on a foundation composed exclusively of ashes. If durability is what is desired it would be wise, we think, to mingle a few bushels of saw-dust and tan-bark with the cinders.

A LOT of Denver hoodlums yesterday broke up a Chinese funeral and danced on the coffin which contained the deceased, after it had been placed in the grave, to the tune of "Down with the Chinamen." They had the grim satisfaction of "downing" that particular Chinaman, at least.

IT is not worth while to go into hysterics about the case of Sergeant MASON. The verdict against him was rendered in behalf of army discipline. After he has had time to reflect a little he will be turned out of jail and restored to civil society. Let us concern ourselves particularly about the welfare of gallant BILL JONES.

THE St. Louis Advance, the organ of our colored population, is using its best endeavors to rid the Four Courts of the colored incubus, Mr. A. ALPHONSA BRADLEY, the discarded son of Georgia, who slipped into our bar through the back gate. It is barely possible that the Hon. J. MILTON TURNER is a [illegible] stless and that he cannot bear to see him [illegible] surrounded by distinguished men of color. Still we are with him in his efforts to relegate Mr. BRADLEY to the hand-cart business.

THE stage of the People's Theater should be swept or sprinkled occasionally, so that he audience will not lose the performers in [illegible]ge in saltatory exer[illegible] should be made to understand that broad plantation negro dialect does not exactly supply the place of the rough vernacular of the frontier. Mr. RANKIN is evidently preparing himself for the part of "Uncle Tom" as he advances in years. We offer this as a sort of side dramatic note.

THE Lower Branch of the Ohio Legislature has passed a bill closing all liquor saloons on Sunday. DEACON SMITH, of the Cincinnati Gazette, has induced a number of leading men of his town to unite with him, irrespective of politics, in calling a mass-meeting in Columbus on Thursday, March 23d, for the purpose of urging the Senate to concur in the measure. This is an insult to the intelligence of the Legislature. What right has Mr. SMITH to hold a bulldozing meeting on the very steps of the Senate to influence legislation?

A POOR old department clerk lay dying in Washington the other day. A score or more of human vultures gathered to the city from the old man's State to secure his desk when death should end his sufferings. The summons finally come and in less than an hour a member of Congress rushed to the Secretary of the Department and demanded the vacancy as his right. The Secretary modestly suggested that it would be well to wait until the corpse had cooled off. Office-seeking is done in Washington on the emergency principle.

THE Cincinnati Commercial says that the letter written by GARFIELD, severely criticising ROSECRANS while he was filling the confidential position of Chief-of-Staff under him, was brought out by the enemies of the dead President in order that they might produce the friendly letter which GARFIELD wrote and thereby prove him a hypocrite and a liar. The lack of harmony in the Republican party is very beautiful to behold, but it will all be lost sight of as soon as the Democratic leaders begin throwing mud and washing their dirty linen in public.

THE Jefferson City Tribune is proud to see the POST-DISPATCH at the head of the newspaper column which is opposing the scheme of the professional Democratic politicians to call the Legislature together and gerrymander the State for Congressional purposes. "It don't make much difference what position you occupy," says the able editor of the Tribune, "so you oppose. It's one of the best indications that redistricting is the proper thing to do, we have observed." The editor of the Tribune, we regret to see, has confounded this journal with the St. Louis Republican.

WE feel under considerable obligation to D. ROBERT BARCLAY, Esq., for his noble defense of secular journalism in a lecture which he delivered in this city last Saturday evening on "Ingersollism." Some might say the secular press was so irreverent, so irreligious. The lecturer would not agree with them. The press, free and enlightened, acted toward Christianity as toward everything else, purifying and elevating it. It was as the monitor in the school, reporting the bad and unruly boy, arraigning before the bar of public opinion the vicious, loud-mouthed, hypocritical professor. That was just, and tended to ennoble Christianity. Mr. BARCLAY used to be a sort of secular journalist himself. He knows and appreciates the splendid influence that the press exerts over the immoral people who love sin but fear exposure. The vigilant POST-DISPATCH with its methods of hunting down and exposing frauds, hypocrites and scoundrels, is worth as much to society as two Police Courts, three Humane Societies and six Open Air Missions.

THE BENTON CENTENNIAL.

THOMAS HART BENTON was born near Hillsborough, Orange county, North Carolina, March 14, 1782. His father dying when he was but eight years of age his early education was somewhat neglected, being mainly obtained in an ordinary country school, from which he was transferred to the State University at Chapel Hill, where he did not remain long enough to complete his studies. Removing with his mother to Tennessee, he adopted the profession of law, soon became prominent, and was elected to the Legislature. He attracted the attention and won the friendship of ANDREW JACKSON, and was his aid-de-camp in the militia service. These pleasant relations were broken by a violent quarrel and street fight, and reconciliation did not occur until many years later, when JACKSON was in the Presidential chair. In 1813, during the war with England, President MADISON appointed him Lieutenant-Colonel, but, peace being declared before he had an opportunity to enter the field, he resigned his commission and shortly afterward located permanently in St. Louis. Here he practiced law, mixed in politics, established the Missouri Inquirer. Party spirit ran high in those days, and he became involved in a difficulty with Mr. CHARLES LUCAS, brother of the late JAMES H. LUCAS, that ended in a duel the fatal result of which he always deeply regretted. Taking an active part in the discussions which preceded the admission of Missouri to the Union, he was, in 1820, chosen one of our first Senators, and held that high office for thirty consecutive years. Defeated in 1849-50 by a coalition between the "anti-BENTON" Democrats and the Whigs, he was elected to the House in 1852, was defeated in 1854, and defeated as candidate for Governor in 1856; after which he retired from politics and devoted himself to historical writing. He died in Washington, April 10, 1858.

Such is the briefest possible summary of a long, busy and honorable life; a life not without its blemishes, but one which the State and the nation could not well have spared. Missouri and St. Louis might with the utmost propriety take much more notice of BENTON'S centennial anniversary than they propose to, for he was their firm friend and fearless champion when they sorely needed such and when there was no other equally capable to be had. If Missouri did much for him he did more for her. He gave her in the days of her infancy and youth a character, position and influence in and out of Congress which she could not otherwise have had. It is hardly too much to say that the State was mainly known abroad through him, and it is certainly not too much to say that all the Senators we have had from 1850 to 1882 have not produced a sum total of services equal to his. We have not yet had as large a political figure as BENTON, and the prospect for the future is not particularly encouraging; so it is tolerably safe to predict that when the political history of Missouri for the first three-quarters of a century is written he will be altogether the most conspicuous character in it. As compared with the illustrious triumvirate with whom he was so long and intimately associated—CLAY, CALHOUN and WEBSTER—he must be content with the second rank. But he was no unworthy rival of these great contemporaries; never feared to meet them in parliamentary warfare, and the records demonstrate his capacity to give and take the hardest blows. He was something more than a politician—he was a statesman of very decided ability, unswerving devotion to principle, incorruptible integrity and undoubted patriotism. Though a Southerner by birth, associations and ideas, his affection for the Federal Union stood the severest tests, and he was almost the last of those public men who were able to sink sectionalism in nationality. When his son-in-law, FREMONT, was a candidate for the Presidency on sectional issues, he would not support him, but gave voice and vote to BUCHANAN. In short, he belonged to that old political school which has passed away never to return, and which, with all its faults, has left more to be imitated than avoided. As a man he was a good hater and a magnificent egotist. He fought his enemies to the last, asking for no mercy and giving none. His indomitable pluck commanded the respect and admiration of his bitterest foes. In a speech during the memorable canvass of 1852, he said: "What have I been doing these past weeks? Good Mr. LYNCH will tell you of our work in Bellefonfaine, where, on the sunset side of the Father of Waters, I have made the graves of my people. Do you ask why, at my age, and with the honors already won and enjoyed, I have left such a scene as that to mingle in such a political fight as this? Because God put into my bosom the heart of a lion and not of a rabbit!" Walking one day along Main street, with head thrown back and hands in the arm-holes of his vest, an urchin, playing marbles on the pavement, looked up, and, recognizing the familiar face and form, cried out "I!" BENTON stopped, and, putting his hand on the boy's head, said: "Yes, my son; and when you have lived as long as I have lived, and done what I have done, you can say, 'I.'" He was not ashamed of his egotism, for he was proud of the ego. He had a right to be, for he deserved the title bestowed upon him in his closing years, "the last of the Romans." He was a Roman in courage, in fortitude, in will, in energy, and in love of country, as well as in self-confidence and self-asserting, dictatoral temper and contempt for opponents. Our State and Nation will be fortunate indeed if they can always have servants as able and faithful, as honest and brave, with brain as clear and hands as clean as the man who stepped into life one hundred years ago tomorrow.

THE FLOODS.

The floods on the Lower Mississippi have passed the memorable high water mark of 1815, and the suffering and destitution among the people living in the riparian counties from Cairo to the Gulf is worse than anything of the kind known in the history of America. The situation is not a difficult one to understand, if the reader will recall the fact that the whole immense water-shed of the country between the Rocky Mountains and the Alleghanies must drain out to the sea through a river not more than a mile wide. After the Mississippi and Missouri have collected the tremendous rainfall and snow-melt of the north and west, bringing the latter stream almost to flood level at St. Louis, the tides roll on to meet the overburdened Ohio at Cairo. Through the East the rainfall has been tremendous, and the Eastern floods have come to meet the Western and rend their way through the alluvial bottom lands down to the ocean. Beginning at a point in Pulaski county, Ill., where the back-water in the Ohio has torn through the levees, the suffering and loss follow the water's course straight to New Orleans. At Cairo the labor of the whole town is concentrated upon an effort to save some of the levees, and yet the greater part of the town is under water. The southeastern corner of Missouri is a country of swamps, marshes and bayous at its best; long lagoons are to be found in every county, but these are all one broad expanse of water now; the flourishing towns of New Madrid, Birdville and Gayoso are now full of hungry women and children. The people have been forced to fly to the highlands for safety, leaving their stock to take care of itself, and consequently much of the cattle and nearly all of the swine have been drowned. The granaries have been washed away, and there is no wheat or corn left in the country; in fact, what was a month ago a thriving and even a wealthy people are now asking bread of the Government. The distress in Missouri, great as it is, does not compare with the destitution further down the river. Everywhere there has been loss and danger, but after the Arkansas adds its turbid volume to the swollen Mississippi the destruction knows no bounds. There are reaches below Helena where the river is more than fifty miles wide. Of course beneath this muddy stretch lie the farms and the agricultural wealth of the richest part of the valley. Full corn-bins, houses, stables, stock and growing crops have been swept away to rot and enrich the new alluvial lands below. Thousands of people on both sides of the river have gone to bed in independent circumstances to arise in the night and fly for their lives from the floods. As yet it is almost impossible to give the figures of the loss. We only know that from Cairo to Port Eads the people have been ruined, and will have to begin life afresh with what they can save from the wreck. All of these people are to some extent dependent upon St. Louis; they are bound to us by every tie of interest, commerce and consanguinity, and it is to this city that they look for help in their misfortunes. It is to be hoped that their demands will be met with prompt, open and liberal hands. The Mississippi bottom lands make the garden of the United States, but we will get neither grain, tobacco, cotton nor sugar from that garden this year.

THE condition of the men working for Mr. JAY GOULD'S Wabash Railway Company was detailed in the local columns of the POST-DISPATCH on Saturday. Men were found who, on $25 a month, had to keep a wife and a family of children. Many were met whose average income was $30 a month and who, on this pitiful pittance, were expected to keep life in a wife and from two to five children. This would be hard enough to do were cash paid for the labor, but the Wabash Company deliberately declines to pay the laborers their money when it is due, and some idea of the suffering which is sure to follow this outrageous conduct may be gathered from the details given. There is no excuse for withholding from the laborer his hire, and when the Wabash Company defers the payment of wages earned in January until March, it is simply practicing upon the weakness of the poor. It is easy to say that if the men are dissatisfied they can go elsewhere to work. They cannot go elsewhere to work. They are caught and held in a mesh of debt and distress, which the stock-jobbing monopolists, who are bolstering Wabash stock in Wall street have woven around them. They are tied hand and foot, and they cannot get away. The January wages have been paid after they were due more than a month. The February wages are now overdue, and the company has made no sign of intending to liquidate them for a month to come. Men who are only making thirty dollars a month, by the bitter sweat of their brows, cannot stand this way of doing business. If the Wabash corporation would use its earnings in paying wages due, instead of bulling its stock, there would be less muttering among the wronged laborers.

AN attempt is being made to saddle Mr. CHAUNCEY I. FILLEY with the authorship of the letter recently published in the Washington Post which reflected so severely on the memory of the late Mr. GARFIELD. Among other things it was said of the dead President in this letter:

It is high time, for the sake of our national common sense, the truth of history and justice alike to the living and the dead, that all this gush over Garfield should end. Millions of better and of greater men have lived and died. The writer of this article was a delegate to the Chicago convention, and at no time voted there for Garfield. I sat within a few feet of him, and spoke to him just after his nomination. He was whimpering like a spanked baby, and water was in his eyes. He was nothing but a professional office-seeker and professional politician. A failure as a preacher and a lawyer, he learned to string words together as a child does beads, and that was his stock in trade. No one can point to an original thought he ever uttered. He betrayed John Sherman at Chicago as treacherously as Brutus did Cæsar or Judas did Christ. While making his speech nominating Sherman, twice a clear, cultivated voice from the gallery called out: "Nominate Garfield." I have it upon the authority of one who became afterward a member of Garfield's Cabinet that this voice was that of a hired claequer from Mc Vicker's Theater, stationed there for the purpose, to carry out a scheme the Garfield ring had concocted long before the convention met.

Mr. FILLEY may be capable of entertaining this sort of an opinion of Mr. GARFIELD, but he certainly didn't write the letter. It is not his style. A comparison of it with Mr. FILLEY'S recent productions in the POST-DISPATCH will establish this fact, we think. Unless the manuscript betrays him, Mr. FILLEY will have no difficulty in proving an alibi.

THE gross immorality of the city of Chicago is well known throughout the land, but recent revelations made by the Inter-Ocean demonstrate that Sodam was a simple, virtuous village compared with this modern sink-hole of iniquity beside the lake. An investigating reporter has "turned up" an establishment on State street styled the Westminster Hotel, which is known as the secret resort of married women, who move in first-class circles of society, and young girls who pass at home for models of virtue. The place is guarded at its entrance by a fashionable millinery store, the connection being so nicely arranged that none but the initiated would ever be able to find it. Here the corrupt daughters of society meet the solid business men of 'Change, the "swells" of the clubs, the rich bankers and the fashionable men about town. The Inter-Ocean says:

If all the words those walls have heard could be repeated; if all the faces whose mirrors have reflected could be exhibited to the public, Chicago society would be swept with shame as with a plague, families would be torn asunder, homes would be made desolate, and the hearts of fathers and mothers, wives and husbands would be made to bleed.

And yet the largest meeting held in the country to protest against the crime of polygamy and the beastly sin of Mormonism was gathered in this same city of Chicago. Every week sermons are preached in that town against the shortcomings of foreign sinners and funds are raised to correct the morals of heathen. Why wouldn't it be a good idea for the Christians of Chicago to suppress the "Westminster Hotel" before penetrating to Utah to regulate the forms of matrimony?

THE vote of the Chinese bill in the Senate marks it as Democratic measure. Twenty-one of the twenty-nine votes were cast by Democratic Senators, while only one negative was cast from that party. The restriction of Chinese immigration is demanded by the whole Pacific Coast and in the interest of the laboring class throughout the country. It is to be hoped that the Mongolian hordes will be barred out. If a community has any rights at all it has the right to determine its own composition and membership. Anti-Chinese legislation is simply an application of the law of self-preservation. Labor in this country is squalid enough as it is without introducing a competition which means ruin and extermination to the working class. The Democratic stand upon this vital question will bear fruit on the Pacific Slope in the coming election.

IT is observed that in the raid on the unlicensed vehicles it is quite common to nolle the cases of drivers of fine carriages, but the pushers of hand-carts and the drivers of spavined express wagons are all compelled to face the music. Is there any reason why favor should be shown to rich people in this matter? We hasten to remark that we think not.

The Homes of Mechanics.

ST. LOUIS, March 11, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Reading in your valuable paper the other day a description of the homes of the laboring class, I thought it might not be out of the way to add a few items. In the first place, your description is only too true; nor can it be sufficiently dwelt upon, or brought before the public, so as that they may realize the untold hardships America's sons are compelled to endure. And why not remedy this state of affairs?

Perhaps some one says, is not a fair compensation ample reward for a fair day's work? One item in your article particularly deserves comment, namely, the few hours of recreation that the laboring class are permitted to enjoy. Few did I say? Yes, but moretruly, absolutely none. Think for a moment how much benefit might be derived from a single day spent in some rural spot, and yet the expense incurred from such a luxury, not to say anything of the loss of work just one day out of 365, compels the weary one to put all such thoughts out of mind and renew his task with redoubled energy. Oh, you who sit in luxuriant homes spending the long hours of early spring in preparation either for seashore or woodland haunts or mountain air, think, I say, while you of unlimited means, pause now to consider whether some anticipated wish will be ungratified, think of the many who would deem it blissful paradise to get but one glimpse of the many you may pass, hurriedly no doubt, as if your presence were to be demanded at the earliest moment; or if they might get but a few moments to breathe pure air as they go from factory, forge or bench, while you may sit in blissful ignorance of either time or expense, only busying yourself in building air-castles or indulging in pleasure which permits nothing but gaiety and carelessness of expense. Think of the ill-paid, poorly fed, half-clothed mechanic struggling year to year to year without so much as one day spent in pure air; think of their little ones, debarred from every enjoyment, however simple. Pay our husbands a fair price and we can afford a few days for our children in the country. Pay our men and you will have less prisons and less need of public charity; pay our men and we can build comfortable homes of our own and provide for old age; pay our men and the mechanic can afford to go to God's house and give his mite towards its support; pay our men and erect less costly edifices, either of Church or State. Finally, we want no charity, no fresh air mission, but give just and ample compensation for our labor and we can then afford to pay for our own missions and be proud to do so. Surely Christian charity teaches us to treat others as we ourselves expect to be treated, and if man does his part, God will not withhold blessing from him.

Correcting War History.

St. LOUIS, March 11, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I saw in yesterday evening's issue a new version of the famous charge of Balaklava. I was not there, but I had some friends who were in the same charge, and their story is altogether different than that of your informant. They every one agree that the order was given to charge the Russian batteries and that Captain Nolan was the bearer thereof to Lord Cardigan. One of my friends was Lieutenant in the same brigade, and he surely had a better opportunity of knowing the facts than a trumpeter. No matter how it occurred, the fact stills remains indisputable that it was one of the most glorious charges the world ever saw. Still as an Irishman who had friends there, some of whom laid down their lives, and others shed their blood upon the ensanguined field, I must protest against the assertion that Lord Cardigan was surprised. The order to the charge was given, and the charge was made. It is wonderful that the trumpeter has kept silence so long when he believed the current version of the charge was false. It is suspicious. Ill Treatment of Gentlemen.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please answer the following in your next issue: We were standing in front of the house where one of us lives, when Sergeant Hall came along and told us to "move on." When one of us told him he lived up stairs, Hall said, "Move on anyhow, you d—d loafers," and moved him, when upon we walked up stairs. Then Sergeant Hall said to the policeman with him: "Arrest any of them dirty blackguards, no matter who he is, whenever you find them here." We now ask you, has any officer of the law a right to use such language to gentlemen? Or has he any right to shove anybody away from his own door, when he knows that said persons are no loafers nor rowdies?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I want war in Europe. Such a war would make business lively here, and put thousands of dollars into my pocket, and I could give ten dollars to the heathen mission and make an equally liberal display of a self-satisfying nature elsewhere. Now the question I want to ask you is, is it right to pray for war in Europe? I am sure that my praying would be sincere, and of the most approved brand. Shall I? And you editors dying for news ought to join in with a loud amen.

Policy Shops in Full Blast in St. Louis Again.

Gambling-Houses For the Poor and the Ignorant

Escaping Any Interference on the Part of the Police Department.

A Hundred Shops Running, Daily Where Felonies are Committed Hourly, Under the Eyes and to the Knowledge of the Police.

A complete list of the keno houses, faro banks and poker rooms now in full blast in St. Louis was published in the POST-DISPATCH a few days ago and made an alarming showing for a city in which gambling is a felony. The machinery of the courts has been effectually clogged for some weeks, while the gambling law has been assigned a place among the dead letter legislation by the "second next best police department," etc. Chicago reached this exact predicament a short time ago, and the result was the narrow escape of the municipal managers from indictment and the rigid enforcement of the law closing up gambling hells. Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away to some extent, it appears that the policy shops, where the poor, lazy and ignorant are robbed daily, have entirely escaped attention.

FIVE SCHEMES

are in full operation in the city. Dozens of the shops are known to policemen on the beats in which they are situated, but no action whatever has been taken to interfere in the slightest manner with the remunerative felonies that are committed hourly in a hundred places in the city. In the most prosperous days of the policy shops not more than 110 venders threw open their doors, while now nearly 100 men find it profitable to engage in this work when it is declared a felony. From the air we breathe of the authorities it is hereby announced that on March 22, 1881, the following law, which is still in effect, was passed:

THE LAW.

"If any person shall make, establish or aid or assist in making or establishing any lottery, gift enterprise, policy or scheme of drawing in the nature of a lottery as a business or avocation in this State, or should advertise or make public, or cause to be advertised or made public by means of any newspaper, pamphlet, circular or other written or printed notice thereof, printed or circulated in this State, any such lottery, gift, enterprise, policy or scheme of drawing in the nature of a lottery, whether the same is being or is to be conducted, held or drawn within or without this State, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than two nor more than five years, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than six nor more than twelve months."

No instruction has been given any grand jury since the law went into effect concerning it, and not the slightest move on the part of the police department has been made to enforce the provisions.

The history of lottery in this State may not be uninteresting at this interesting stage of municipal affairs. In 1833 the General Assembly granted a charter to the Sisters of Charity of St. Louis to operate a lottery, and to raise thereby $10,000 and at the same time a charter to the trustees of New Franklin, then a promising town, to raise $15,000 to build a railroad to the Missouri River. The old town had been washed away and this was also a charitable act as well as the first grant to the Sisters. In 1842 the New Franklin town lottery was sold to Walter Gregory. Other schemes started under charters, but the original charitable objects were lost sight of and the schemes became dishonest. In 1863 a constitutional provision against lotteries put in an appearance. The courts decided for and against the schemes until the United States Supreme Court decided against the lotteries July 17, 1880. They then went on under cover until the Johnson law went into effect, and last May not a single shop in town was open. France, the head of the old Missouri, left the city. Bob Kerr, his manager, turned his attention to the wheat market and lottery had stopped. Last June Pate started his scheme and called it Pate's Races. Last October Capt. Hutchinson and William Dornin started theirs and called it the National Races. The Louisiana Lottery and the German Lottery threw open their doors. January 1 of the present year the Union Races began turning the wheel and January 13 the Kentucky Races opened up for operations. On last Thursday the Union went over to Pate's, and to-day five schemes are handsomely supported.

PATE'S RACES

are run by H. Brunor and Henry Lehndorf. The POST-DISPATCH reporter found Brunor yesterday afternoon, hard at work in his shirt sleeves. Inquiry as to Mr. Lehndorf's whereabouts was answered with the statement that he had just left and would be back in a few minutes. He had just gone up the street. The principal offices of this scheme are situated and operated as follows:

Samuel Watson, who operates seven other offices, has his own at the south side of Christy avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, three doors from Police Commissioner Kinkead's commission store. The receipts at this office are larger than at any other in town.

Frank Menhert, No. 15 North Ninth street.
Gus Norman, No. 1106 Market.
James O'Bearn, No. 1133 Chestnut.
Henry Morris, east side Seventh street, one door south of St. Charles street.
Buck Springer, No. 101 North Seventh street.
Philip Ochner, No. 415 Walnut; works for Kaub.
G. P. Ross, 1321 Poplar street.
Dan Slatter, south side of Wash street, between Broadway and Fifth street.
Mr. Kelly, north side of Morgan street, between Seventh and Eighth.
Wm. Selkin, Carondelet avenue next to engine house, between Park avenue and Barry street.
J. O. Sales and Mr. Kempfer, 1103 Morgan street.
Jake Broka, north side of Morgan, between Eleventh and Twelfth sts.
Aaron Block, east side of Eleventh between St. Charles and Washington ave.
Wm. Jones, west side Sixth, between Walnut and Market streets.
Walter Blockie, 914 North Eighth street.
H. Linberg, 310 North Third street.
Abe Morris, 316 Vine street.
James Bradley, west side Eighth street, between Wash and Franklin avenue.
James Grady, 1412 Broadway.
Jacob Erich, No. 1628 Morgan street.
Reese Davis, in rear 1429 Morgan street.
M. J. Woehner, No. 1406 Clark avenue.
Steiner & Myers, No. 740 South Fourth street.
Mr. Reed, No. 724 Christy avenue.
Nick Carr, Eleventh and Wash streets.
James Curray, 305 North Levee.
——, No. 1603 Market street.
——, No. 10 North Third street.
John Glarden, Christy avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets.
Headquarters, 110 South Fourth street, John Glarden, clerk.
Wm. Miller, north side Franklin avenue, between Jefferson avenue and Twenty-seventh street.
Mr. Wheeler, Thirteenth and Carr streets.
John Chandler, east side Seventh between Myrtle and Spruce streets.
Henry Pate, 12 North Fourteenth street.
Mr. Kempfer, Broadway and Spring street.
Edward Kaub, 415 Walnut street.
——, a former book-keeper for Dr. J. H. McLean, now a vender on Third near Market street.

THE UNION RACE VENDERS

who went to Pate's scheme are:

Christ Brokate, No. 1113 Morgan street.
Frank Mehnart, west side of Ninth near Market street.
——, Seventeenth and Morgan.
——, Reed, Eighteenth avenue.
Walt Blackie, Franklin avenue.
Nick Carr, Eleventh and Wash and Franklin avenue.
Charles Price, Fourteenth streets.
——, Carr streets.
——, Monroe, 21 M[illegible]
Matt ——, Eleventh [illegible]arles.
Charles Williams, [illegible] of Locust, between Third and Fou[illegible]s.

The present local [illegible] are all alike, having been fashioned [illegible] Pate's. Seventy-eight horses run twice [illegible], that is seventy-eight ballots are put [illegible] wheel, thirteen are drawn in the morning [illegible] twelve in the evening. The horses are named Diet, Kettle, Culer Diet, After Horn, Hob, Doff, Egg, etc. A purchaser may bet that Horn will be in the race, viz.: will come out in the first twelve drawn. If it does he is paid four-and a-half times the amount invested. If he buys that Horn will come out in any exact place, third, for instance, and he is the third, he receives $36 for $1 invested. For naming two of the horses to be in the race he gets $28 on one, for $3 he gets $200, for $4 $800. Just the difference between this and the old number lottery is very slight. The purchasers name the horses, which are entered on the blank space in the following ticket:

> Not valid unless corresponds with horses sold and registered.
> No.....
> COMBINATION POOL TICKET, ON PATE'S RACES.
> Races take place twice a day, at 12 m. and 5 p. m.
> SECOND RACE.....5 P. M., '82.
> .....
>
> .....
>
> .....
> NO POOLS SOLD TO MINORS.

This is identically the same as the old combination number lottery. Pate's Races have now between sixty and seventy offices running in this city.

THE KENTUCKY SCHEME

has its headquarters in Oak Hall building, northeast corner of Fourth and Washington avenue. A reporter arrived there yesterday afternoon just after the drawing. The air was blue and the gentleman in the office warm. At the morning and afternoon drawings the company had been "hit" to the extent of nearly $300. The backers of this scheme are not known, but their interests have been intrusted to Bob Kerr. During the first month's operation $900 was lost by the scheme. Some old vendors for Pate's complained against the private drawings of that company and said that for sixteen races not a single low number came out, while it is known that policy-players usually select them. The Kentucky races opened up to fill the bill, running exactly on the same plan as Pate, only giving public drawings from the beginning. Their offices are as follows:

Headquarters, Oak Hall Building, Fourth and Washington avenue.
George Hotchkiss, 1341 Carondelet avenue.
L. Kinker, Twelfth and Morgan streets.
—— Harrison, Eleventh and Christy avenue.
—— Shapling, 614 Wash street.
Thos. Force, 516 Spruce street.
W. Hoe, Sixth and Christy avenue.
C. Williams, Seventh and Carr streets.
—— Van Bibben, 310 N. Linn street.
Gus. Haifer, Thirteenth and Poplar streets.
Jack Hall, Eleventh and Christy avenue.

This scheme has several other smaller offices than those mentioned.

THE NATIONAL RACES

were instituted by Capt. Hutchinson, an old lottery manager, and William Dornin. The headquarters are at the southeast corner of Fifth street and Franklin avenue, second story, and a few doors west of Police Commissioner Kinkead's place of business. The principal venders are as follows:

Dave Gibson, 8 North Seventh street.
Charles Griffiths, 15 South Ninth street.
John Marshall, Morgan street, between Third and Fourth streets.
Dock Jurdon, Wash street, between Fourth and Fifth.
Dave Sculley, Christy avenue, near Seventh street, south side of street.
Joe Walters, Eleventh street, between St. Charles and Washington avenue.
Toney Selken, Morgan, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, north side of street.
Sixteenth street, between Market and Chestnut, run by a boy, owned by Toney Selken.
Edward Thorn, 508 Spruce street.
——, Sixteenth and Franklin avenue.
——, 1201 Morgan street.
Charles Grundy, Compton Hill.
Harvey Heineman, proprietor of three offices, runs his own at the corner of Ninth and Christy avenue.
John Warner, at No. 309 North Levee.

LOUISIANA LOTTERY.

The principal vendor of the Louisiana Lottery in this city is Ed. Kaub, who runs a bird store at No. 415 Walnut street. Another is located on Third near Market street.

Tickets for the German Lottery are sold on the west side of Third near Market street. In all there are 100 venders running shops in this city.

NORTH ST. LOUIS ITEMS.

The Star Social Club meets this evening at Broadway and North Market street for the annual election of officers.

A train of thirty one cars, loaded with 310,000 feet of pine lumber, will be sent out from the yards of the Knapp, Stout & Co. Company. This will be the largest shipment made at one time this season.

The banquet that was to be given by the North Market Street Cness Club this evening has been postponed until to-morrow evening next. The next game will commence to-morrow evening, and will be between F. W. Imsiepen, Constable of the Tenth District, and Harry Harmon, of Company G, New York.

Ridiculous.

Isn't it ridiculous to claim the position of the "Leading Great Jewelry House of America" and then prowl around newspaper offices till midnight trying to get a peep at the prices of some "Jealous Competitors," and finally to advertise, "Should any lower prices be offered we shall meet them"?

Calling for Their Money.

The managers of the various orphan asylums in the city are calling at the Moyor's office to-day to receive the respective amounts to which they are entitled under the bequest of the late Joseph Schnaider. The money is most welcome to these institutions, and the grateful thanks of the generous brewer's beneficiaries must be sweet music to his surviving family.

The Leading Great.

The self-styled "Great Jewelry House" has not denied the specific statements of Mr. Simeon Ray, of the Globe-Democrat, and of Mr. Sittig of the Republican. Unless this can be done and the statements be proven false, this "leading, cheapest, great jewelry house" must not expect the public to regard its claims to be the "leading great," nor will the public see any "character and dignity" in such transactions as is charged.

E. JACCARD JEWELRY COMPANY, Fifth and Olive streets.

The Fair Directory Controversy.

Gov. Reynolds, the referee appointed by the court in the Fair Grounds election case, this morning, designated the 27th inst. to hear the testimony and arguments. This time was fixed upon by agreement of attorneys.

Be Consistent.

The self-styled "Leading great cheapest jewelry house in America" advertises to-day that "Should any lower prices be offered on spoons and forks we shall meet them." Now, neighbor, our advice is, be consistent; reduce your price and lead, not follow, to $1, $1 10, or even $1 20 per ounce, and by all means keep your word and deliver the goods. Our price is $1 25 to-day.

BEATING THE RECORD.

The Phenomenal Run of the City of Baton Rouge from New Orleans.

The Trip Made in 4 Days, 14 Hours and 25 Minutes—Where are the Cincinnati Boats?

The steamer City of Baton Rouge arrived at the wharf this morning, after one of the fastest runs ever made from New Orleans. The time is the best actually made since the Natchez and Lee race, and, all things considered, it by far surpasses all previous records.

It must be remembered that the Baton Rouge made only a business trip, and hence the time is unprecedented. The arrival of the boat and the particulars of the run have caused great excitement on the levee, and during the day the steamer was visited by a great many people, who were anxious to look her over.

The City of Baton Rogue left New Orleans on March 8, at 5:25 p. m. She was not prepared for anything like a race against time, but was simply making a business trip. She arrived at Baton Rouge at 6:40 a.m., on March 9, at Bayou Sara at 10:35 a.m. and at Natchez at 7:20 p.m. on the same day. Vicksburg was reached on March 10 at 4:30 a. m. She arrived at Memphis at 2:07 p. m. on March 11, Saturday, and at Cairo yesterday 13 minutes past noon. At just 7:20 this morning the handsome craft passed the Arsenal wall, below this city, and came booming up to the wharf. The scene was extremely picturesque. The sun had just risen high enough to illuminate the water, and as the boat rushed on at a high rate of speed,

DASHING THE FOAM IN EVERY DIRECTION,

the picture was perfect. A considerable number of steamboatmen and others had gathered on the wharf to await the coming of the Baton Rouge, and all were impressed at her quick time.

Mr. John R. Triplett, whose family was on board and who went down Saturday to meet the Baton Rouge, lost a wager to Col. John G. Prather, Mr. Triplett backing his judgment that the boat could not possibly arrive before noon to-day.

The entire time from port to port, counting in all delays, was four days, fourteen hours, twenty-five minutes. A loss of three hours and nine minutes was recorded as the result of necessary landings, the boat making the usual business trip and taking in freight and passengers wherever they were to be had. After forty-eight hours' run, the Baton Rouge was one mile below Gain's Landing. She arrived at the Anchor Line wharfboat in this city with seventy cabin passengers and 400 tons of freight. Among the prominent St. Louisans who made the trip were: John A. Scudder and family, Samuel Cupples and family, Wm. H. Markham and family, James J. Sylvester and family, Charles A. Farris and wife, the family of John R. Triplett and several others.

The time is the fastest made since the race between the R. E. Lee and the Natchez in the year 1870. On that occasion the Lee ran from New Orleans in 3 days, 18 hours and 30 minutes. It must be recollected, however, that the Lee was stripped for a race and was running for all she was worth. All her fenders were off, and nothing that could catch the wind, not so much as a door was left upon her. She made no landings for any purpose whatever, and carried few passengers. No stoppages were made for fuel, coal being towed to her on barges and taken on board while she ran along. The Lee even took her own chances, as river men say, carrying much more steam than the law allows.

WHILE THE BATON ROUGE

made an ordinary trip in every particular save the time, carrying a great many ladies and children on board. During the run fourteen stoppages were recorded. A storm was encountered the first night out, and a very dark night delayed the run considerably just above Memphis. The run is regarded a phenomenal, the time to Memphis, Cairo and St. Louis wiping out the record of the fastest of the Cincinnati boats, which had heretofore been ahead of St. Louis. To mark the fact the negro roustabouts have painted an iron slab and set it up on the boiler deck, the inscription being as follows:

"The company I run with is the J. M. White, R. E. Lee and the Natchez. I do not associate with the Rube Springer, Charles Morgan, or any of those Cincinnati folks."

(Signed) "CITY OF BATON ROUGE."

The trip just completed is the fourth one made by the boat, which was built by the Howards of Jeffersonville, Indiana, at a cost of $125,000. The Baton Rouge is 300 feet long, 48 feet beam, the depth of the hold being 9 feet. Her tonnage is 1,000 tons, and she has 5 four flue-steel boilers, 30 feet long and 48 inches in diameter. The cylinder is twenty-six inches in diameter, with a ten foot stroke. The wheel is thirty-four feet in diameter with fifteen-foot buckets. She is the exact counterpart in every particular of the steamboat City of New Orleans. The boat is the property of the New Orleans Anchor Line, of which John A. Scudder is president.

The officers on this fast trip have been: H. E. Bixby, master; J. C. Elton, clerk; George Ritchie and Wm. Penny, pilots; Dick Carroll and Tom Ross, mates; Samuel Hill and Eugene Smith, engineers; Bailey and Elton, strikers; Mike Fitzgerald presided in the drug-store and G. S. Parker was the steward.

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

What the Brooklyn Divine Has to Say About Things in General.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, is at the Southern, and lectures to-night at Mercantile Library Hall on "The Moral Uses of Luxury and Beauty." This morning a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH paid the reverend gentleman an official visit. Mr. Beecher's hair has rapidly whitened of late years, but his face wears the same kindly smile and healthy appearance, and the general public can hardly believe he is bordering on seventy years of age. In reply to inquiries he said:

"Yes, I am in excellent health, but I sometimes realize that I am growing old."

"Who is occupying your pulpit during your absence?"

"My two brothers alternate. My lecture course does not last beyond a few months, and I only appear in certain cities where I have become accustomed to the audiences. So far as St. Louis is concerned, I am beginning to feel quite at home here, and I believe the people are quick to appreciate the points I aim to make."

"Is your wife at home?"

"No, Mrs. Beecher is spending the winter among her orange groves in Florida. The climate there is very mild and pleasant, and we believe her health is benefited by a short visit to that State every year."

"What is the membership, now, of Plymouth Church?"

"It reaches 15,000, including the congregation, while our Sunday-school numbers about 3,000. Plymouth has scarcely known more prosperous times than the present."

Mr. Beecher had a perfect levee to-day, for his personal acquaintance is very extensive and he has many friends throughout the city.

The Strakosch Italian Opera Company registered at the Southern this morning. Mme. Etelka Gerster, accompanied by her husband, Dr. Gardini, was, of course, the first to receive attention, and was assigned elegant parlors, to which she immediately retired. A reporter of the POST-DISPATCH questioned Dr. Gardini concerning the madame's reported illness at Milwaukee. In reply he said:

"The Madame was attacked with a sore throat and seemed to be threatened with severe sickness, but she suddenly rallied, and is still able to perform her musical duties. She will sing to night in Lucia, and I expect the audience would never suspect her of having been ill. The Madame is glad to return to St. Louis, but she recurs with amusement to the deposition she gave when last here, in the peculiar suit of Maj. Pierce against Mr. Mapleson. The Madame says she is feeling much better this morning."

The company occupied their leisure moment's to-day in getting their baggage straightened out. All seemed to be in excellent spirits, and delighted with the week's prospects. Mr. Edgar Strakosch accompanies the party and superintends its affairs. Mr. Strakosch states that on passing through the St. Louis tunnel the car in which the leading members were located became detached, and for about fifteen minutes there was pandemonium. The car finally caught on again and was safely anchored in the Union Depot. The prime donne were, however, thoroughly frightened.

PATE'S BONDS.

The Other Side of the Story of the Forfeitures.

In Saturday's POST-DISPATCH an article was printed noting the number of forfeited gambling bonds on which the name of R. C. Pate figured as security. The article has called forth the following card from Mr. Pate:

ST. LOUIS, March 13, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your issue of Saturday last, you published a list of forfeited bonds upon which my name appears as security. Said bonds amount in the aggregate to about nine thousand dollars, which amount it is claimed I owed the city and could not be recovered by law. Allow me to preface what I have to say in regard to said claim by stating that I defy any man to produce a claim against me for a single dollar, the payment of which is or can be authorized by law, and if the law does not authorize its payment it is certainly not a legitimate claim. Just so it was with these bonds. They were not bonds the payment of which could be enforced by law, as the authorities at the time well knew, or they would have enforced them for the reason that I was then and at all times since have had property out of which that amount could have been easily made. The circumstances under which these forfeitures were secured were as follows:

In 1875 raids were made by the police and forty-five men were arrested and bail for said forty-five men was given. The cases were all set for trial, but before the day that they were to be heard I authorized my attorney, Hon. J. R. Claibourne, to pay costs in each case if the City Attorney would accept it rather than consume time in trying them, and as I knew that said cases could not be sustained by proof. I thought that said proposition would readily be accepted. My attorney (J. R. Claiborne) made said proposition to Mr. Cornelius, who was then the City Attorney; but Mr. Cornelius declined said proposition on the ground that the Hon. M. R. Cullem, who was then the judge of said court, would not impose a fine, no matter how small, unless the proof of guilt was produced, and in so far as the proof of guilt could not be produced, said proposition could not be considered. The proposition was then made that these men fail to put in an appearance when their cases were called and that their bonds be forfeited, and that Mr. Cornelius, the City Attorney, would recommend that the mayor (then Mayor Britton) remit the amount of said bonds upon the payment of costs in each case, and that the cases be not reinstated. This agreement was entered into between J. R. Claiborne, who represented myself and the men whose bonds I had signed, and Mr. Cornelius, representing the city. Mr. Britton likewise agreed to remit the amount of said forfeitures, less costs, if Mr. Cornelius so recommended. With this express understanding these men, although all of them were in the city and could have been produced upon an hour's notice, if required, failed to put in an appearance and their bonds were forfeited. Mr. Claiborne and myself thereupon called upon Mr. Cornelius and requested him to accompany us to the Mayor's office and to recommend to the Mayor that said bonds be remitted, as he agreed to do upon the payment of costs in each case. This Mr. Cornelius did, but Mayor Britton required that the City Attorney put his recommendation in writing. This Mr. Cornelius refused to do, in consequence of which Mayor Britton refused to interfere.

Under these circumstances I then told the Mayor and City Attorney that I had allowed these bonds to be forfeited with the express understanding that they would be remitted upon payment of costs, and that I would not pay one cent upon said forfeitures unless said agreement was adhered to. I further told the Mayor and City Attorney that I had a good and valid defense against the payment of said bonds, but was perfectly willing to do as I had agreed. There was never any attempt made to enforce the payment of said bonds by securing a judgment against me for said amount, and under the circumstances no honorable man would have so attempted. So far as my liability is and was concerned, the records in the Recorder's office in this city will speak for themselves. The publication of this letter will be but an act of justice to yours,

Very respectfully, R. C. PATE.

I most cheerfully certify that the above statement is true in every particular.

Respectfully, JAMES R. CLAIBORNE.

A WIDOW'S HARDSHIP.

Failure to Notify of Death Bars Recovery of Benefit Fund.

Judge Adams decided adversely to-day the case of a widow's claim upon a benevolent association, Kanz vs. The Improved Order of Red Men. The husband in 1874, it was claimed by the widow, mysteriously disappeared. At that time he was a member of the order in good standing, and upon proof of death the widow would have been entitled to receive $500 from the benefit fund. Seven years elapsed and there were no tidings of Mr. Kanz. The lodge was appealed to for payment of the insurance money to the widow upon plea of presumption of death, and the lodge was advised to set up a defense on the ground of five years' limitation for recovery on contract. The dilemma was presented of arrears for dues, as the date of death could not be shown, and the court holds that the widow cannot recover.

There seems by the evidence to have been no disappearance or absence. Kanz died in 1874. The court says:

"If the widow had declared upon the death in 1874, I think her claim would be barred by the statute of limitations. The constitution and by-laws in themselves constitute no written contract with Kanz. It sets out a scheme, by which persons may be associated and may derive certain benefits. It was in the widow's power in this case to have given notice of death, and her cause of action arose when she ought to have given notice.

"If I could find the alleged disappearance to be proved, even then the widow could not recover, as Kanz did not pay his dues, so that he did not remain a member in good standing up to the time of the presumed death in 1881. If Kanz died in 1874 his widow can not recover. Under the pleadings an actual death in 1874 is not in issue. If it could be considered under the pleadings the cause of action is barred. The widow rested her right of recovery upon an alleged disappearance of her husband in 1874 and continuous absence for seven years. She could only recover upon that issue, and the evidence is against it. Kanz died in 1874."

Wilsonia Magnetic Clothing

CURES EVERY FORM OF DISEASE

WITHOUT MEDICINE.

Tenney, Girvin & Co., 804 Olive street, Sole Agents for the Southwest. Pamphlets and all information free. Send your address and we will call on you FREE OF CHARGE.

The success attending the use of the "WILSONIA" Garments during the last two years in the cities of Brooklyn and New York has been unparalleled in the history of medical or electrical therapeutics. No form of disease known to nosologists but has succumbed to the marvelous influences of "WILSONIA'S" peculiar combinations. The dry decomposition of metals, in connection with a perfect non-conductor, has resulted in the evolution of a force absolutely indescribable by any of the laws commonly recognized by the scientists of to-day. Here in the cities of Brooklyn and New York over 20,000 once helpless invalids are rejoicing in the blessings of restored health.

The blind have been made to see, the deaf to hear, the dumb to speak, and the paralyzed to walk erect; the martyrs to dyspepsia, the morbid hypochondriac and the despairing consumptive are this day healthful living witnesses of the "WILSONIA" system. The barred windows of our lunatic asylums have yielded up their guests to society; in fact, nothing in the history of the world ever presented such marvelous results as the "WILSONIA" MAGNETIC GARMENTS are every day demonstrating to the once incredulous physician and the timid, despairing martyr to disease. Evidence of the above can be had on application. Send for pamphlets.

Wall Street Gossip.

NEW YORK, March 13.—There are indications that the bears who have been talking down the credit of individuals and firms will find themselves in hot water this week. Some of the rumors lately circulated have been traced to a responsible source. At least in one case apologies have been refused, and steps toward legal proceedings have been taken. It is stated a prominent bear operator will be called upon to prove statements which he is alleged to have made concerning a prominent firm. A private dispatch from Washington says Secretary Folger will issue a call for bonds this afternoon. It is reported on good authority that an agreement for pooling the earnings of the cable companies has been ratified in London, with the exception of some details which will be perfected early this week. The earnings of the Union Pacific have increased $250,000 thus far in March. At the Stock Exchange this morning prices opened generally lower, with a bearish feeling predominant.

11 A. M.

NEW YORK, 11 A. M., March 13.—Wheat about ½c higher, fairly active and strong. The stock market opened ⅛@2 lower Saturday, closing better for New York Central, while Manhattan Elevated was 1⅛ higher. On early dealings a decline of ⅛@1 took place in the general list and New York Central fell off 5⅛. This was followed by advance of ⅛ to 3, in which the New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Western Union, Lake Shore and Louisville and Nashville were prominent. New York Central subsequently fell off 1 and advanced 1⅛, and Louisville and Nashville declined ⅞, and sold up to 1⅛.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Receipts 6,439 brls. Strong and higher in sympathy with wheat and stimulated too by a good demand. We quote: Fancy $6 40@6 60; choice $6 15@6 25; family $5 75@5 80; xxx $5 35@5 50; xx $4 80@5 00; x $4 35@4 50; superfine $4 15@4 25 fine $3 50 @3 75; favorite brands 15@25c higher. patents $7 25@8.

Wheat—Receipts 4,007 sks, 3,600 bu. A sharp advance in Chicago and higher markets in the East and in Europe started a boom here and prices went up largely. Futures were considerably excited, especially as there were pretty free buying orders received, but the feeling was rather unsettled and frequent fluctuations followed; closed at advance of 1¼c for March and year, 2¼c for April, 1⅞c for May, 3⅜ for June and 1⅞c for July. Grades very dull at the advance, as offerings were small and stiffly held, while the demand was light; millers and shippers out. Spot No. 2 red sold at $1 25⅛@1 26⅛; March at $1 25, and $1 25⅛ bid later; April at $1 27⅛@1 28; May at $1 25@1 27⅛; June at $1 16⅛@1 19⅛; July at $1 09⅛@1 12⅛; year at $1 06⅛@1 07⅜, closing at $1 07¼. No. 3 red had bids of $1 19⅛ in E. and $1 20⅛ for this side; No. 4 offered at $1 15 in A. and $1 17 this side, with $1 14⅛ bid for latter; rejected in E. sold at 95c; No. 2 Mediterranean salable this side at $1 31; No. 3 do at $1 24; No. 2 spring at $1 15⅛.

Corn—Receipts 1,126 sks, 25,500 bu. Advanced stiffly and showed great strength, most the time under an active demand, stimulating advices from all other markets and the sharp inquiry that came for cash. Futures were very strong, closing at 1⅛c higher for March, 1⅜c for April and May, 2c for June and 1 11-16c for July. Grade No. 2 mixed and rejected in urgent order and shipping demand, but white-mixed not so strong, though taken by order and milling buyers. Spot No. 2 mixed sold at 64⅛@64⅜; April at 64@65⅛; May at 65@66⅛; June at 66⅛@66⅞; July at 66@67⅛, closing at 67@67⅜; for March 64 bid. Spot No. 2 white-mixed, sold at 72⅜@72⅛ E. side, 73 this side and 72 in U. D.; May at 73⅛@74; rejected do at 68⅛ in E., 68@69 this side; rejected at 63⅛@64; no grade at 54⅜ E. side and 55⅜ bid for this side.

Oats—Receipts 130 sks, 16,800 bu. There was a subsidence in the urgent order and feeding demand that has prevailed for cash and prices weakened, though most sellers still held firmly. Futures dull; spot No. 2, sold at 49@48⅛ in St. Louis; 48⅛@⅛ in E., and U. offered at 47⅛; June 44@43⅜; March offered at 47⅛, bid 43; May at 45, bid 44⅛; rejected in St. Louis sold at 47⅛@47 and No. 2 white was offered and unsold at 47⅛.

Rye—Receipt, —— sacks, 500 bushels. Very flat, as there was but a small and indifferent demand. The only sale was of rejected it St. Louis at 82c; No. 2 white offered at 85 in E., with 81⅛ the best bid.

Barley—Receipts —— sks, —— bu. Steady and quiet. We quote: Rejected 60@70; medium 85@90; prime 80@85; choice to fancy 90@$1 05; Canada $1@1 15.

Hay—Receipts 210 tons. An active local demand and only moderate supply to meet it caused prices to strengthen and rule stiff. Sales this side—prairie $10 for prime, $11 75 for choice; mixed $15@15⅛; timothy $16 50@17 to $18@19 for prime to strictly prime; $20@21 for choice; $24 for fancy: East track—prairie $10 for prime; timothy $15 50 for prime, $20 for choice.

Millfeed—Steady and quiet. Sacked bran sold at mill at $1 05.

Provisions were strong and advanced, a higher market in Chicago having a stimulating effect, while the demand on order account was first-rate, helping to strengthen prices. Standard mess pork sold readily at $17 25, but futures were entirely neglected. Prime steam lard sold at 10⅛, but worth 10⅜ late. Loose dry salt shoulders worth 6⅛, long clear 9.20, clear ribs 9.30 and short clear 9.55, and sales made delivered at 9⅛ for long clear and 9.35 for clear ribs; boxed short clear sold at 9⅜, clear ribs at 9⅛ and long clear at 9.40. Bacon sold packed at 7⅛ for shoulders, 10.30 for long clear and 10.55@⅜ for short clear and latter loose at 9.45. S. C. hams 11⅛@12⅛ for plain and canvased. Tallow 7@7⅜, according to quality; grease tallow 6⅜, cake 7⅛@⅜. Breakfast bacon 12@13⅛. Grease 4@5 for brown, 5@6c for yellow, 6⅛@8c for white. Beef—Extra mess $12 00@16 00 per brl, according to brand; $8 50 per half brl; dried 12@13c per pound. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@5 00 per doz. Salt—Lake $1 25 per brl. Ground alum $1 10@1 15 per sack.

Highwines—Steady. Sales 125 brls at $1 17. Cincinnati $1 16; Peoria $1 16; Chicago $1 18.

Lead—No demand at all, as manufacturers were well supplied and there were no shipping buyers in the market. Sellers were willing to dispose of soft Missouri at $4 75, but met no buyers. Spelter continues dull at 5⅜c. Domestic pig lead in New York meets very slow sale, as the demand is insignificant, and though 5.05@5.07⅛ is asked for small lots, it is doubtful if 5c could be obtained for round lots.

CATTLE—The demand was quite urgent for all grades of stock from common to good, and the moderate supply was not half enough to go around. Sellers were very firm in their views, and made buyers pay stiff figures for the stock. The quality consisted mainly of medium and fair native steers of 800 to 1,250 lbs, and which brought $4 25@5 90 per 100 lbs. The few bunches of old cows of 700 to 1,100 lbs brought from $3 to $4 90. Scalawag stuff, but few offered and scarce. Stock and feeding steers, none offered and in demand, and the same can be said of good fresh cows with calves. Ruling quotations firm.

Evangelical Alliance.

The regular meeting of the Evangelical Alliance was called at 10 a. m. at the rooms of the Presbyterian Board of Publication. The only business of any importance beside the usual comparisons of the Greek and the new revised Testament was an address from the Rev. James D. Moffat, President of Washington and Jefferson College, at Washington, Penn., concerning the present condition and prospects of that institution. He stated that about half the graduates of this college up to the present time have entered the ministry. There are about 200 pupils now in attendance. Among the gentlemen attending this morning's meeting were Rev. Van der Lippe, Reaser, Shields, Niccolls, Porteus, Brooks, McComb, Holmes, Hyde, Allen, McCoe and Leighton, of this city; Rev. W. G. Ready, of Bolivar, Tenn., and Rev. Irvin, of St. Charles, Mo.

ST. LOUIS DISTILLERY.

Fire Early this Morning Destroys the Building.

Damage Done by the Flames—How the Fire Laddies Worked—Insurance.

The alarms that called out the entire fire department last night at half-past one o' clock, were occasioned by the discovery that the St. Louis distillery on Benton and DeKalb streets was in flames. The fire was first seen by one of the firemen employed in the works, who immediately notified officer McElhiney, the alarms being turned on from box 264.

The fire originated in the engine room, and in an incredible short space of time had spread to the different departments of the distilling and re-distilling rooms, destroying all the vats, tubs and measuring apparatus. Owing to the highly inflammable nature of the materials upon which the flames were fed, it was soon perceived that it would be impossible to extinguish them when once they had gained a hold, and the exertions of the fire laddies were confined to the endeavor to prevent their spreading to the warehouse of the distillery, in which 1,000 barrels of whiskey were stored. The flames gained access to this portion of the works twice, almost reaching the barrels each time, but were in both instances beaten back by the efforts of the firemen.

SEVERAL OF THE MEN WERE BADLY SCORCHED while at their posts, their rubber coats melting off of them where they stood. At one time it was thought best to abandon the building altogether in order to save the surrounding property. This, however, was not done, and to the surprise of even Chief Sexton himself the most valuable portion of the works was saved. Had the flames once gained an access to the barrels in the warehouse it would have been impossible to extinguish them, and the damage would have reached several hundred thousand dollars. At one time only five feet intervened between the flames and the whisky, the firemen taking their position in the space between. Mr. A. Bevis, one of the firm of Bevis & Co., the owners, was found at the scene of the fire this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter. He was asked if he could give any account of the origin of the fire. He replied that he could not say positively, but believed it to have been caused by the spontaneous combustion of a pile of grain that was in one end of the engine room. "It might also have originated from the explosion of a lamp that was left burning on the top of the engine last night." "The watchman," Mr. Bevis continued, passed through the engine-room a few moments before the flames burst out, but saw no evidences of fire at that time." When asked if he could approximate that had been sustained, Mr. Bevis replied that he would rather not make any positive statement, but thought that the loss would fall between fifty and seventy-five thousand dollars. Three years ago the same portions of the distillery were visited by fire, and upon the suggestion of the Fire Chief a fire proof-wall was erected between the distilling rooms and the other portions of the building where they were rebuilt. To this precautionary measure, may be attributed the saving of the warehouses and the main portions of the building this time. Mr. Bevis also stated that upon a satisfactory adjustment with the insurance companies the works would be immediately rebuilt. The different members of the firm of Bevis & Co. expressed themselves as highly pleased with the manner in which the firemen worked, and stated that they had never seen more nerve or judgment displayed before. The loss is confined to the machinery, measuring apparatus, vats, tubs, copper retorts, etc., etc. Not a barrel of whisky was destroyed.

The building, engines and boilers, machinery and stock were insured in thirteen eastern companies for $22,500. This estimate will leave the company losers at least $30,000.

THE WINDSOR HOTEL.

Depositions Taken as to Its Recent Sale.

The taking of depositions in the Windsor Hotel case was begun in the law office of Mr. Ben R. Davenport, No. 108 N. Fourth street, at 10 o'clock this morning. The first witness examined was the plaintiff, Mr. Charles A. Peck, who testified that he sold the Windsor Hotel property to Mrs. Sallie A. Livingstone for the sum of $50,000; that he received in payment 8,856 acres of land in Starr county, Texas, of the supposed value of $25,000; a piece of property in Alton, Ill., supposed to be worth about $10,000, and $15,000 in promissory notes signed by the Windsor Hotel Company. Mr. Peck swore that he trusted to the representations made by the defendant's husband to that extent that he caused no examination to be made concerning the real value of the Texas and Illinois property, but took both pieces as being worth the estimate placed upon them by Livingstone. The Alton property he subsequently exchanged for a lot on Main street in this city, but the Texas land, he says, has turned out to be worthless, and he want an equitable settlement from the defendants. Mr. J. R. Timberman, the real estate agent who brought the trade to a head, swore that he received commissions from both Peck and the Livingstones. From Peck he was to receive $1,500, but up to date he had been paid only $500. The Livingtones were to pay him something over $800, of which he has received only a small portion. B. H. Engelke knew very little; to most of the interrogatories of the attorneys he answered, "I don't remember." A great deal of amusement was elicited by the replies of the witness, and the attorneys and spectators were frequently convulsed with laughter over the comical answers to many of the questions. The further taking of depositions will be resumed at the office of the plaintiff's attorney, Mr. Woodward, to-morrow afternoon.

A Foreign Judgment's Effect.

Judge Horner rendered to-day judgment for plaintiff for $2,726 65 and 8 per cent interest in the note suit of Fulton Iron Works against B. F. Riggin. The opinion of the court in this suit reads as follows: "A judgment in Colorado is a bar to a suit in that State as to the issue on the statute of limitation. As there has not been, however, an adjudication on the merits and as the issue has no relevancy in the suit in this State, the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment. It cannot will be contended that the scope or effect of a foreign judgment is to be enlarged simply because it is a foreign judgment."

Crumbs of the Courts.

Judge Lindley is sick to-day, and no session of the court was held in No. 4. The trial docket of the day was reset for March 27.

The suit of the National Printing Company, of Chicago, against M. Tobin, O. Marks, M. S. Lewandovska and John Scholten, will be reached this afternoon in Circuit Court No. 2. The plaintiffs are publishers of the Musical Age, a publication in which the local firms named were solicited to advertise. So many copies of the paper were to be distributed under the advertising contract and it is claimed that the numbers on the order were subsequently changed without authority.

Jundgment was rendered to-day in Judge Adams' court: Frank Donovan vs. Patrick Kane, constable for plaintiff, for $4,000 as value of property, $500 damages. This was the replevin proceedings of the trustee for the old Times to recover the property seized by the constable, in the course of the dissolution of that newspaper, and the attendant litigation.

The flames were extinguished by a Babcock. The building is owned by the above mentioned company. The damage was confined to the roof, none of the stock being injured, and will not exceed $100. No insurance.

AS Mr. John Becker, the Mayor of Collinsville, Ill., was locking the safe in his flour mill for the night on the 9th inst., he was confronted by two burglars and ordered to throw up his hands. This he did so suddenly that his right hand which was clenched, struck one of the burglars under the ear, knocking him down, and the other one fled. The fallen burglar drew his pistol, and after firing one shot escaped. They have not yet been identified.

JACOB SCHWAB, while attempting to jump on the ferry-boat which was pulling out from the landing opposite St. Charles street, about 1 o'clock this afternoon, miscalculated the distance and fell into the river. A rope was thrown from the boat, which Schwab caught and was pulled on board, none the worse for his mishap, but very uncomfortable from his unexpected bath. The man was slightly intoxicated when he attempted this feat of jumping on a boat over ten feet from the water's edge.

A Scenic Award.

Messrs. Noxon, Halley & Toomey have received a telegram this afternoon announcing the award to them of the contract for the scenery of the new Grand Opera-house at Ashland, Ohio. There were seven competitors from Chicago, Cincinnati and New York, and the bid of the above firm of scenic artists was the highest, but it was nevertheless determined to place the work in their hands. The Ashland Opera-house is erected at a cost of $85,000. This shows the reputation of Messrs. Noxon, Halley & Toomey.

The Coroner to-day investigated the case of Bridget Melody, Third and Lamberd streets, upon whom it was supposed an abortion had been committed by maltreatment. UNLESS the floods of the Lower Mississippi subside within thirty days, there will be little prospect of making a crop in the overflowed districts this season. Planting may be done in May, but it will require some time for the land to dry sufficiently to be worked. Again, sickness is apt to follow high water. Other possible contingencies give a discouraging outlook. However, there is hope yet.

Woman Suffrage in the Legislature—The Latest Murder.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, March 9, 1882.—I went up to the State-house to-day, and into the ladies' gallery of the Senate. I suppose it was the ladies' gallery, though it was nearly half-full of men, and because in one of the corridors outside I saw a sign pointing in another direction labeled "Gents' Gallery," and I wondered if the man who ordered that inscription was the "gent who wears pants and eats lunches." No doubt I ought to be ashamed of my non-familiarity with the location of the various halls, committee-rooms, galleries, etc., of our celebrated house of the gilded dome, but I have never been able to spend much time loafing around there, and I am afraid I do not quite share the enthusiastic delight which is supposed to inspire every patriotic Yankee at the idea of a speech. It is only now and then, on a very interesting topic and from a very entertaining speaker, that I am willing to sit still and listen to one man's notions of things as long as he chooses to hold forth. To be sure, it is more interesting in the legislative halls than in many other places, because both sides of a question are alternatively treated, but the air of that gallery, perched high up towards the ceiling, is terribly bad, and it is dark and muggy and crowded and uncomfortable. Then I found myself unexpectedly so hemmed in to-day that I couldn't get out and had to stay the session through, which was bad, because I couldn't afford the time. Still I'm by no means sorry that I went.

It was the second day in which the bill to give municipal suffrage to women was under discussion, and as the speakers on both sides of the question agreed in declaring that it was without doubt the most important and vital subject which had or would come up for consideration during this session, it seemed plain that the real or apparent indifference to the question of the various towns of this commonwealth, which at their town-meetings of the past few days have almost invariably voted it down altogether, or else indefinitely postponed it, does not exist everywhere. Those Senators seemed wide awake enough regarding it, and genuinely interested, for or against.

Before it came up, however, there was an hour of the dullest music imaginable, which was somewhat entertaining to me, however, by reason of its novelty. A long list of something or other was mumbled off by the speaker, much as some priests mumble prayers, to which come responses from some member of the congregation seated in red velvet chairs around the oval of comfortable desks, who would mumble or snap or remark, "Pass," interrupting the speaker frequently in the middle of a word, who meekly repeats "Pass", and goes on. It sounded very like a game of euchre in which nobody "ordered up" or "made it." Then a lot of something-or-other else was read off, on which, by application of the proverb that "Silence gives consent," the Senate was supposed to vote, not a Senator opening his mouth or wagging his head, however, either when the ayes or noes were called for. In the midst of this dreary waste of legislation, however, half a dozen Senators on the side beneath the gallery evidently combined for a very quiet bit of fun, and when one member of the list was droned out and the ayes called for, this little clique promptly shouted "Aye!" which made everybody start in amazement and look about, wondering what the question was, and listen eagerly when the "noes" were called for. But nobody said "No," and the ripple of excitement subsided into another ripple of quiet merriment, when Senator smiled to Senator, and then all went to sleep again.

[illegible] woke up by and by, to find that [illegible]ody was listening to the reading of a [illegible] of remonstrances against the imposi[illegible] of further political duties on women. One [illegible]me from a number of ladies of Cambridge, a[illegible]other from about 150 ladies of Boston and [illegible]ook line, and the names appended were those of women of wealth and prominent social and intellectual position. Whether these same women would have also signed a petition for the imposition of such duties on women of education and property, of course I can not say, but I believe such a measure has been at one time proposed, and favored by many who can not think it desirable that votes should be put into the hands of any greater number of ignorant and poverty-stricken people than already have it. (I trust it will be observed that I am expressing no personal opinion whatever, on any of these questions; that I have a perhaps unfortunate tendency to see the force of arguments on both sides of a question, does not prove that I accept the conclusions drawn from them by the one or the other party.

It is a new thing in this State to have petitions against suffrage sent to the State-house, by ladies, and shows, as do a variety of other indications, that there is a very generally prevailing opinion that the suffragists are right in maintaining that the enfranchisement of women is sure to come, and that it is only a matter of time. Nearly all thinking people whom I have heard express an opinion unite in saying that it is undoubtedly to be; that the tendency of everything here in Massachusetts tends towards it, and that it is only a question of time. I have been told several times of late, by people who profess to know the gentlemen intimately, that Governor Long and Speaker Noyes (the latter a recent convert), "are suffragists from policy."

"Why—then they think that the change is really coming about?"

"Yes."

"And do you think so?"

"Yes."

"This year?"

"No; but before very many years. The attitude of its adherents and opponents has changed. It was formerly an attack. It is now a defense."

This afternoon the first Senator to speak opposed the passage of the bill. (I forgot to say, by-the-way, that the majority of the committee on the subject reported favorably, while a minority of five out of eleven presented an adverse report, which was undoubtedly the ablest and best as well as most courteous and considerate argument which I ever read on that side of the question.) The speaker was honest and emphatic, but not especially convincing. The next Senator was likewise in opposition to the bill. He spoke especially in support of the remonstrants, and in a clear, logical, but rather prejudiced fashion. I have a feeling that that man really does think his own brain a little superior to that of the prominent ladies whose names he sounded with so much unction when reading them; whereas I don't believe that the genial Senator from Essex, who penned the minority report, has any such notion of masculine superiority.

Then a somewhat robust Senator spoke for the bill, and, beginning rather small, wound all hands up to a point of genuine interest in his arguments. I didn't notice that he said anything new—what can be said new about it?—but he put old arguments in very interesting fashion. He replied to the minority report very ably, but—well, there was one particular point in that report which I specially wanted him to meet, and when he took it up I stood up to listen, but—he evaded it very neatly.

Then a little Senator stood up for the opposition, but he began to fling his arms around and to pound the desk, and, not being partial to that kind of oratory and seeing a chance to escape, I slipped out into the misty, moisty would-be snow-storm which has broken in upon the blustering March weather which we have been enjoying.

It was getting very dead in Boston in the matter of news when a lucky murder came to help out the city editors, who had not the wherewithal to fill their departments of their papers.

Last Tuesday morning, in a very quiet street, whose very name few Bostonians knew till its present notoriety, a quiet, inoffensive woman was stabbed in the doorway of her own dwelling as she returned from the bake-shop with milk for the breakfast. Broad daylight, seven minutes after 6 o'clock, the man accosted her at the door, followered her in, stabbed her, walked out and quietly away out of sight, in the very presence of two police officers to whose attention he was called by a man who had heard the woman's cry of "murder."

The policemen let him walk off, remarking that they "guessed it was only a family quarrel." Aren't we nicely protected by our salaried men of muscle and helmets?

The poor woman fell dead on her kitchen floor; her little daughter wept by her side, and the house was soon invaded by the usual motley throng of policemen, newspaper men, detectives, doctors, neighbors, and curiosity-mongers generally. And now everybody looks in every issue of the daily papers for the latest news concerning the work of the detectives, who are struggling with a perfectly blind puzzle, to which there now seems no possible "clew," all the usual ones failing in this mysterious case.

One of the most disgraceful things that Massachusetts has suffered for a long time is the investigation going on at present in the State-house of the affairs of the Normal Art School. Such a generous public institution, located so delightfully in the beautiful but unfortunate Dealon House, with every opportunity for a splendid history, and here is a terrible quarrel between the teachers, principal, trustees and all concerned, and followed by a disgraceful public "investigation." I haven't read the long daily reports of the hearing, but the bits I have chanced upon and the head-lines are enough. The nature of the matter may be guessed at by one heading in yesterday's paper—"The Art School Dirty Linen."

Not all of our semi-public institutions are thus unfortunate, however. Our various musical schools and societies have been exceptionally free from any kind of scandal, and their influence on our people and on the nature of our culture grows more noticeable yearly. Methods that were new not long ago are now recognized among us. The tonic sol-fa method of singing at sight was introduced here but a very few years ago, and now it is an accepted system, and teachers and students learn it as a part of their curriculum. The N. E. Conservatory must be given the credit of this innovation—which is borrowed from England, where it has long been accepted—and Mr. Harry Benson is its chief apostle in this country. I speak of it because a card for one of the classes lies in sight on my desk, and the misfortune of the representatives of one school of art called up by happy contrast the good fortune of another.

John Logan's Disappointment.

Washington Cor. New York Sun.

The Hon. John Logan, who takes liberties with the Queen's English, supposes himself to be a candidate for the Presidency. He is in dead earnest, and works like a beaver, night and day, in the interest of this absorbing idea. Mr. Logan is a Stalwart by profession, but when the lines became tightly drawn between the late President and the New York Senators, his Stalwartism weakened visibly. The more powerful attraction of the post-offices and the tide-waiterships shook his faith for the time being.

Since the advent of Gen. Arthur to the White House, Mr. Logan's first love has come back to him stronger than it was originally. Stalwartism and the post-offices now go happily and conveniently together. They keep company by a natural affinity under the changed conditions, and the Senator from Illinois has looked forward hopefully to the near future to gratify his noble ambition.

It occurred to Mr. Logan's aspiring mind that if Grant and Conkling could be retired permanently from politics, there would be no big lion in his path for 1884 in the Stalwart sect. In the most disinterested manner he proposed to bring Grant back into the army, and to pension him for life as General.

The pension bill for Grant went through the Senate easily, because of the conviction that it would be killed stone-dead in the House whenever a direct test could be reached. And now comes the sad news that a chance is only wanted to give this scheme a quietus, and to keep the third termer on the war-path against all comers in 1884, including the Hon. John Logan.

And Conkling, too, is not to be retired. The Senator from Illinois ardently desired to see him put on the bench of the Supreme Court, where he might have a chance to die of dry-rot, and to renounce ambition in a black silk gown and ten thousand a year. But, though Arthur was willing, Conkling was obstinate in practicing law, instead of writing judicial opinions. Thus the plans of the Hon. Logan have come to grief, and his experience, like that of others before him, adds another example to the long catalogue of disappointed ambition.

Philadelphia's Woman Broker.

Special Dispatch to Cincinnati Gazette.

Arguments were made for three hours before Judges Hare, Mitchell and Tell this morning, in the Court of Common Pleas No. 2, on a rule to show cause why the capias upon which Mrs. Marion L. Dow, the female broker, is held in $2,000 bail in the suit brought against her by Miss Harriet S. Dunning, should not be quashed, and the broker discharged on nominal bail. The argument turned upon the validity and effects of her alleged marriage with James McDowell in Boston, and was principally of a technical nature, her counsel arguing that a married woman can not be arrested and held on a capias. On the other hand, it was argued that, even if the marriage was genuine and valid, it could not be taken advantage of by the defendant, who had always fraudulently concealed the fact. In deciding the matter Judge Hare said that by living apart from her husband, after a marriage which was alleged with apparently good reason to have been fraudulent, the defendant had practically become a femme sole trader, and was therefore liable for misconduct or fraud in the management of the business by which she supported herself. He therefore thought that she should remain in custody.

MR. WM. J. SMITH resides at No. 1506 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa., and is well known in journalistic circles. He writes: I had an attack of rhematism in both of my knee-joints, and for several days I was almost crazed with the intense pain caused by the disease. To sleep was out of the question. I would lie in bed all night awake, and the slightest motion then would produce such sharp pains in my knee-joints that I would actually scream out. I had to come down stairs one step at a time, and it was difficult for me even to limp about the house, and I found it impossible to attend to my business. Nothing I could do relieved me of the intense pain, although I tried everything I heard of. But a friend came one day and said: "Why don't you give that St. Jacobs Oil a trial?" I resolved to and sent out for a bottle. Almost as soon as I commenced rubbing with the Oil I felt a slight relief of pain and a peculiar tingling sensation in my knees, and the more I rubbed the better I got. By the time I had used up one bottle I felt so much better that I could walk without difficulty, and I can truly say as I sit here that by the time I had consumed two bottles I was entirely cured and have not a vestige of rheumatism and have not been troubled with it since I finished up that second bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.

The Female Lobbyist.

From the Washington Critic.

The female lobbyist is to be found at the Capitol from early morn till late in the evening. She understands the needs of our country better than any two statesmen in Congress. She can tell you more about the proposed ship railway across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec than Jim Eads can, and can in language more eloquent than Uncle John Roach portray the necessity of subsidizing ocean steamships. In person she is beautiful; in character and carriage dignified; in her affections tender; is pure as the snow which crowns the Alpine heights, yet as melting and gentle as they are when the summer sun has taught them to flow in silent rivulets down the mountain side, giving life and vigor to the hills and valleys below.

A VENERABLE THIEF.

How a Trusted Old Bank Clerk Stol $80,000.

From the New York Sun, 10th.

Richard H. Cornwell, loan clerk of the Fourth National Bank, 14 Nassau street, confessed to his employers a week ago to-day that he was a defaulter to a large amount. He made the confession because the officers of the bank had discovered irregularities in his accounts and that some of the securities intrusted to his care were missing. The amount involved in this discovery was not large, but when Cornwell's attention was called to it, as a possible error, he broke down and made a clean breast of his dishonesty, which has resulted in a loss to the bank of a little more than $70,000.

Vice-President O. D. Baldwin's statement of the defalcation was as follows: "One of our oldest and most trusted employes has abused our confidence, and is a defaulter to the amount of $80,000. The amount may be larger, but we have investigated pretty thoroughly, and are certain that it cannot amount to $100,000. Mr. Cornwell has been in our service eleven years, and was loan clerk. He was capable, and we had complete confidence in him. So far as we have examined, his first irregularity occurred about three months ago. As soon as we learned the amount of his defalcation we telegraphed the facts to the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington, and presumed that he would inform the public, if he considered it advisable to do so. We have got to take our turn to face the music, not for the amount lost, for that is nothing to us compared with the misfortune of having misplaced our confidence and the downfall of the man who has abused his trust. The pecuniary loss to the bank is not large, nor will it be felt, as we have a surplus and profits of $1,161,822."

Cornwell's place as loan clerk is one of the most responsible in banks which make what are termed call loans, which is a large part of the business of every down-town bank. In making call loans the notes given therefor are not discounted, but are accompanied by collateral securities of an aggregate market value of from 20 to 30 per cent more than the amount of the loan. The Fourth National Bank is one of the largest lenders of money in the city, and frequently its loans average more per week than the loans of any other of the fifty-eight Clearing-house banks. Of late its weekly average of loans has been about $18,000,000, of which about two-thirds are call loans, the security for which passed through the hands of Cornwell. The market value of these securities must have averaged more than $15,000,000 a week. His method of robbing the bank was to take securities from the different packages and rehypothecate them. The amount borrowed by him on these securities was about $40,000. He concealed other thefts by adroit manipulations of his books—just how was not explained by the bank officers yesterday. In all he appropriated, as far as can be traced, $80,000. He was under bonds of $10,000, upon which the bank can recover.

The bank has recovered all of the stolen securities pledged by Cornwell by paying the loans he obtained upon them. He had hypothecated them with various persons. Who they were the officers declined to state. They have no doubt but that he lost the money in speculation, but said they did not know through what brokers he conducted his speculations.

Cornwell said he had none of the money in his possession, and no assets that he could turn over to the bank. The bank officers said they did not know what he had done with the money, but presumed he had speculated with it. He lived unostentatiously in a hired house in Plainfield, N. J., his habits were good, and he was not extravagant. Speculation, therefore, is the explanation suggested of his loss of $80,000 in three months.

The bank officers said they had taken no step to prosecute Cornwell further than to inform the Comptroller of the Currency, who was the "proper officer to prosecute violations of the national banking act." Since his defalcation was discovered, Cornwell has been seriously sick at his home in Plainfield.

Cornwell is 65 years old, and has been engaged in Wall street for over thirty years. It was reported in the street that his salary as loan clerk was less than $2,000, but Vice-President Baldwin said that the bank paid him $4,000, and that the place was doubtless worth $5,000 in all to the incumbent. Until 1857 Cornwell was a member of the note brokerage house of George S. Robbins & Son, in Pine street, which at the time of its dissolution, in the year mentioned, was the largest house in that business. Mr. Cornwell next formed the stock brokerage house of Cornwell & Son, also in Pine street. He was a member of the New York Stock Exchange nearly up to the time of its consolidation with the Open Board of Brokers in 1869. He lost his membership by reason of his inability to retrieve his fortunes after his third failure. He failed the first time in 1865. After retiring from the Exchange he dealt in miscellaneous securities until he entered the service of the bank in 1871. He obtained the position by reason of the eminent qualifications his business had given him, and through the friendship of President Calhoun of the bank.

One of the old members of the Stock Exchange, in speaking of Cornwall yesterday afternoon, said that he was the last man he would have suspected of such a misdeed. "Whom can we trust now?" he asked. "Why, if he had come to me for a thousand or two thousand dollars, I would have given it to him simply upon his word. Every one who knew the man was profoundly shocked upon hearing of his crime."

A bank officer, bewailing the event, said: "I don't see how we can help these things. We have to trust some one. We get the most trustworthy men, put them under bonds, and pay them well, and go over their books and cash as often as we can."

Beecher Breaking Up.

New York Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

While the orator of Plymouth Church is absent on a lecturing tour his brother, Thomas K. Beecher, of Elmira, occupies his pulpit. He is, however, only half brother, and this makes a vast difference. The first four children, including Henry Ward and Mrs. Stowe, inherited genius from their mother, who was really a wonderful woman. She died early, and the second wife, though highly respected, was not a genius. The misfortune, however, with Plymouth pulpit, is that it has had too much display of mere genius, and too little of solid instruction. Beecher's lecture fee is $400, and the money must be paid or secured before he appears on the platform. There is great curiosity to hear a man who has been so long before the public, and lecturing is a very suitable way of satisfying the staring crowd. Beecher is the only Brooklyn pastor who does not call that place his home. He can no longer vote there, having removed his residence to his Peekskill establishment. He boards with his son while in Brooklyn, where he spends only a limited part of his time. For a $20,000 man, he certainly takes the clerical profession in a free and easy manner. There is, however, but one Beecher, and hence it is just as well to let him have his own way. The report of his illness at Chicago created a deep sensation here, but as he has resumed lecturing temporary fears are abated. It is evident, however, that Beecher is overdoing himself, and he has of late displayed unmistakable signs of decay.

An Invoice of Seals.

From the New York Sun.

Twenty-one sea lions were liberated in Central Park yesterday morning from the crates in which they had arrived, and floundered into the pond in which four former arrivals of their kind were lazily sporting. The immigrants first plunged thirstily into the water, thus wasting a good deal of it over the curbed margin. The pool was thoroughly troubled and very much crowded, and it was not long before friendly relations were established between the four old residents and the new comers. The herd is made up mostly of females, but one old bull weighing 1,000 pounds immediately established himself as the guardian of the pond, and was seen to swim round and round it with a watchful eye upon his charges. These twenty-one sea lions, with two others which died on the way here, were lassoed on the rocks on the coast of the Santa Cruz Island in the Pacific, 400 miles north of San Francisco. At this season of the year hundreds of the females herd on the rocky shores of these islands, and here their young are educated. For six weeks after birth they cannot swim, and so their mothers remain by them, and the wild shore becomes a sort of kindergarten. The bulls meantime parade about a little outside the opening of the inlet, keeping guard. The fishermen approach in small boats, and lasso as many sea lions as they can carry off. The lions make little resistance, and as each one is caught the line is fastened to the rocks until enough are captured. Then the animals have to be floated carefully out to the smarcks, and while they swim readily, care is necessary to keep their heads above water and prevent their drowning. Once on shipboard, they are put in crates in pairs. The present herd of sea lions was caught for Charles Reiche & Brother. On their way to New York from California a man rode in the express car with them to pour water over them and give them an occasional hundred-weight of fish. Two sea lions died on the journey and two calves were born, but they did not live.

The herd will remain in Central Park for a week, when some of the lions will be sent to Europe, and others will go out upon the road with the tent shows.

MAPLESON AND GYE.

Two Englishmen Possess the Two Opera-Houses of New York.

From the Dramatic News.

It is now a settled fact that two foreigners shall possess our two opera-houses. Mr. Mapleson pushed an American impresario out of the Academy of Music, and has the lease of it for an almost indefinite term of years, and Mr. Gye, or the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garyen, has signed the contract by which he becomes the responsible manager of the new National Opera-house in this city. The bids of American managers for this last named place, even when coupled with such names as Patti or Nilsson, were futile against the influence of Englishmen. We have every reason to hope that Mr. Gye will turn out a more satisfactory and reliable manager than Mr. Mapleson. Gye, pere and fils, have established Italian opera in London on a financial basis far in advance of any other people who ever undertook the task. Mr. Gye's London company comprises nearly everything that is great in opera the world over, and we have reason to suppose that he will deal equally honorably with us. To succeed here he will have to pursue a very different course from Mr. Mapleson. That ingenious gentleman has in the course of four seasons almost worn himself out here. A man of illimitable promises, his performance of them is ridiculously incommensurate. His ability, season after season, is limited to drafting up a plausible prospectus that will draw out a good subscription. And, hoodwinked as they invariably are, the subscribers, season after season, vow that they never will subscribe again. If we compare what he has done in the four seasons he has been here with what Mr. Strakosch did before him, the balance of credit is infinitely on Mr. Strakosch's side. Yet Mr. Strakosch, who is an American, and still an important stockholder in the Academy, was turned out by the other American stockholders to make way for Mr. Mapleson. This was in consonance with the same sort of Anglomania that caused the stockholders to resolve en masse that they would not go to hear Mr. Maretzek's opera of Sleepy Hollow in the Academy, because their presence might perchance make it successful. To the whims of these very stockholders Mr. Maretzek sacrificed a fortune. So did Mr. Strakosch, who was refused the Academy when he had lost his money. We are not against Englishmen managing our opera companies. If Englishmen can do it better than Americans, by all means give them the opportunity. But if Mr. Mapleson is to be taken as a sample, then they can hardly be called a success. Nothing that gentleman has done can compare for one moment with the Strakosch season of 1873, when Nilsson, Cary, Campanini, Capoul, Torriani, Nannette and Maurel were in the same company. Think of these names, and of the ones Mr. Mapleson presents us with this year. Yet never were his promises larger. If Mr. Gye repeats what Mr. Mapleson has done, he will fail, as Mr. Mapleson must ultimately. He would have failed this season if it had not been for the lucky accident of the Cincinnati Festival and the illness of Patti there. But Mr. Gye is a wise man. He has learned enough to know that we will pay the highest prices for the best and nothing at all for an inferior thing. In our mind there is no doubt that he will wipe Mr. Mapleson out, as the National Opera-house will the Academy of Music. Mr. Mapleson has humbugged us for the past four years. He can do so for one year more, but that will end him.

From a Cottage to a Spanish Palace.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When the French sought to establish a monarchy in Mexico a Mazatlan youth raised a regiment of boys and waged against such of the invaders as appeared in Sinaloa a warfare that told. The young man's father was of Castilian blood and his mother was a Mexican. His name, Corona, soon became famous, and at the age of 23 he was regarded as the Mosby of Mexico. At the end of the war he was a Major-General, the hero of the soldiers and the idol of Mazatlan society. He was six feet tall, broad-shouldered, handsome and daring. While attending a ball at the American Hotel in Mazatlan he stumbled over a domestic, knocking a tray from her hand. Stooping to pick up the crockery Gen. Corona noticed that the girl was very pretty and very saucy. She told him that her name was Betty Bowman, that her mother was a San Francisco washerwoman, and that he ought to know better than to rush headlong down a dark stairway. Corona made love to the American miss, and before leaving for the capital he had learned of her irreproachable, though very humble, life. Once away, Betty's face and pert ways haunted him so much that he wrote to her, arranging for marriage by proxy. He remained in Mazalian; the bride went to a convent school. They were a thousand miles apart, and wrote to each other daily, the husband constantly instructing the wife in polite ways. President Juarez, fearing that Corona's popularity would lead the people to give vote to the popular young soldier at an election then approaching, concluded to send him as Minister to Madrid, the most enviable diplomatic position in the eyes of all Mexicans. Gen. Corona took the washerwoman's daughter to his palace in Madrid, and she now is regarded as the most bailliant and accomplished lady at the court of Spain.

Ralston's Expensive Yacht.

From the San Francisco Chronicle, March 2.

The famous pleasure yacht which was originally built for the recreation of the unfortunate Ralston is now lying at White's ship-yard. The Simson Brothers, her present owners, are making another effort to render the precarious craft navigable. She originally cost Ralston $60,000, but defects in her construction rendered her unsafe, and she was several times overhauled and refitted with new boilers and machinery, but all to no purpose. For a year or two past she has been lying in the estuary at Oakland, rotting on the mud flats near the Alameda local railroad bridge. It is said that $100,000 has been ineffectually expended upon her.

THE WAR OF THE ROSES.

A Too-Much Married Milliner Praying to be Released.

Mrs. Mary Rose enters the divorce court this morning with a shocking series of allegations against her husband, Henry Rose. Their matrimonial path has been anything but rose-strewn. They were married in this city July 17, 1878, and, with some few intervals of absence on the part of the husband, lived together until last October. The wife alleges that at all times she was faithful, dutiful and loving, but that her husband was neither. Mrs. Rose alleges that during one whole summer her husband remained at Victoria, Mo., lavishing his improper attentions upon Adeline Meyers. Subsequently Mrs. Rose alleges that he cultivated illicit relations with Louisa Burnes of this city, and was a constant frequenter of improper resorts on Spruce street. Mrs. Rose further alleges that her husband, although able-bodied and active, utterly failed to provide for her and to keep the wolf from the door she was compelled to go into the millinery and dress-making business. Her husband Mrs. Rose alleges, however, pressed his attentions upon her young lady assistants and several were driven away in consequence of his unseemly behavior. Mrs. Rose further charges her husband with an improper attempt to assault Annie Britt, the servant girl. She further alleges that Mr. Rose expended her earnings in card-playing and drinking, and on several occasions acted in such a way as to place her in fear of her life. By way of diversion one day Mrs. Rose alleges that her husband came home and shattered the show-case, raising a general disturbance among the milliners and dressmakers, and causing her deep humiliation and shame. Mrs. Rose has finally resolved to free herself from her self-imposed fetters.

[illegible]ission[illegible]rm of this city has been soliciting information regarding the prospects for the wheat crop in T[illegible]as. In answer to their inquiries several responses have been received. From Ft. Worth, Texas, one party writes: "Texas has more wheat sown than ever before, and it looks better and ten days earlier than last year. They commenced harvest about the middle of May last year and will commence this year in about sixty days from now. You will see lower prices sure on wheat. If I was in shape I would sell short sure." Another letter from same place says: "In regard to our growing wheat crop will say: Think the average fully fifty per cent more than last year, and at this time very forward for time of year. The past two nights have had frost, with some ice, and if the crop is not hurt (and think it is not), and we have favorable weather from now on, we look for an early and abundant yield. We shall again aim to put the first car new wheat in your market of '82. What premium can you get us to put the first car in by the middle or 20th of May? Think we can on former date. The season for corn very backward owing to wet weather."

UNWHOLESOME FOOD.

The Punishment Provided by the Statute for Selling It.

The Variety of the Cases in the Court of Criminal Correction and Police Courts.

To-day a charge of selling oleaginous substances was docketed in the Court of Criminal Correction against Stephen C. Wheelock and Samuel Gillaspie. This charge rarely appears on the dockets of the courts, though the violations of the statutes and ordinances are undoubtedly ft fequent in this city. Both the Municipal Assembly and the Legislature have given the matter of unwholesome food much consideration, and the result is that punishment is provided by both city and State against such violations. Several years ago an office of Inspector of Meats was created and an old butcher was appointed to the position. His duties were to visit all the meat-shops and butcher stalls in the public and private markets and at private stands and confiscate any tainted meats found exposed for sale, and also to institute prosecutions under the ordinance providing punishment for the sale of unwholesome and adulterated food. The office was abolished when the great work of municipal retrenchment was begun, this being deemed the least important of the hundreds of offices that then existed.

The section of the statutes under which violations are prosecuted are 1597, 1598 and 1599, and read as follows:

"Every person who shall knowingly sell the flesh of any animal dying otherwise than by slaughter, or slaughtered when diseased, or shall sell the flesh as of one animal, knowing it to be that of another species, or shall sell unwholesome bread or drink without making the same fully known to the purchaser; and any butcher or other person who shall sell or offer to sell the meat of any calf which was killed before it had attained the age of six weeks shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. Every person who shall fraudulently adulterate, for the purpose of sale, anything intended for food or drink or any drugs or medicine, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

If any person shall sell, or offer for sale, any compound resembling butter in appearance manufactured from cattle fat or beef suet or other article known to the trade as "oleomargine," unless the same shall be clearly and indelibly marked on every package with some name or brand by which it may be clearly and easily distinguished from butter, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor." The punishment for violating these sections is laid down in section 1,606 as not less than $50 nor more than $500.

Speaking of the matter to-day Judge Cady said in answer to a question concerning the frequency of these cases: "No, the charges of this kind are not yery frequent now. In 1866 during the existence of the Inspector of Meats, who was himself an expert hundreds of cases were made. He would visit a butcher stall and at once pick out meat that showed any signs of decomposition and confiscate it, at the same time instituting a prosecution against the person exposing it for sale."

"Is there any difficulty in making cases of this kind in court?"

"Sometimes there is considerable, but usually the evidence can be secured."

"Would the fact that a bargain for the purchase of decomposed meat had been made with a butcher who represented it as good be convicting evidence?"

"Certainly, it does not require all. The simple fact that it has been exposed in a place and among other meats offered for sale is evidence under the statute to convict."

"Are the cases in proportion to the violations?"

"I don't know. They are very rare now, and I know that during the existence of the office of Inspector of Meats they were very frequent."

Judge Jecko, of the First District Police Court, before whom the cases made under the city ordinances came, was questioned concerning the frequency and said that for several years past they have been exceedingly rare in that court. In the Second District Police Court not more than two cases have been tried since the court was opened.

THE WATER WORKS.

Plan of the New Buildings to Be Constructed.

Commissioner of Public Buildings Beattie is completing the drawings of the new high service engine and boiler-houses, smoke stack and water tower at Bissell's Point. The engine-house, designed to accommodate the four new engines now being constructed at Baltimore by the Ramseys, will face west and will occupy the ground immediately adjoining the old high service engine house on the west. It will be 176 feet 6 inches in length by an average depth of 93 feet. The total height will be 84 feet. The new coal-house, which is to be built in the rear of the boiler-rooms, will be 88 feet in length by a depth of 90 feet 2 inches. The smoke stack, which will occupy the space between the two buildings, will be 138 feet in height. The new water-tower, intended to connect with four new fore-mains from the new engine-house, will be erected on the corner of Broadway and May street. It will be fully as tall as the old tower on Fourteenth and Grand avenue, and in architectural design will be a much handsomer edifice, and altogether the new structures will far exceed the old in magnificence and commodiousness. The total cost of the new buildings and tower will be $425,000. The cost of the engines, boiler, etc., will be fully $475,000. The contract for building the foundations was let last week to the well-known firm of Skrainka & Veiths. The work of breaking ground will be begun at once. The new engines are to be delivered in St. Louis by June 1, 1883, and the entire new system is expected to be in full working order by the 1st of September of the same year.
